NAZIS MUST BUY
MILLION TONS OF
WHEAT ABROADSelf-Sufficiency Plan
Failure Revealed.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Staff Service.]
BERLIN, Dec. 13.—Germany must buy abroad close to 1,000,000 tons of wheat in the coming year, it was revealed today in the Frankfurter Zeitung.

Also 1,000,000 tons of rye will have to be taken out of the seed supply, the reduction of which will imperil pork and other meat supplies unless seed and fodder substitutes can be found.

This is a blow to the wide circles in Germany which have been convinced that the country had at least enough grain for its own needs.

Experts of the Frankfurter Zeitung declared that Germany has been trying to obtain the wheat she lacks through barter deals in southwest Europe, but that she will attempt to buy most of the wheat in Canada with which a special new trade agreement was signed recently.

Crop Estimate Too High.
The Frankfurter Zeitung declared that through lack of meat, the consumption of white flour increased in Germany by 200,000 tons in the last three months.

Experts estimated this year's consumption of wheat will amount to 5,000,000 tons. This year's crops were estimated by official experts at 4,700,000 tons, but this was found too high. Part of the crop is not good enough for human consumption and another part must be reserved as seed, leaving only 4,000,000 tons for human consumption.

Germany has been negotiating for the purchase of 40,000 tons of grain from Czechoslovakia, but the papers were instructed not to report this fact in view of political opposition to Czechoslovakia.

Repeat Goering's Orders.

All German radio stations rebroadcast today the speech that Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, commissar for the four-year plan, delivered to the peasant congress at Goslar two weeks ago. In this address he forcefully impressed on peasants their duty to deliver fixed amounts of bread grains as ordered, and especially denounced as a "traitor" every peasant who used bread grain as feed for hogs or cattle.

The reason for the repetition of this speech, which caused astonishment at the time of its delivery by its emphasis, was revealed by the Frankfurter Zeitung's article.

The paper likewise reveals that peasants are refusing to comply with delivery orders and that last year deliveries fell between 10 and 20 per cent short of the reich nutrition estimates program. This year the delivery dates have been considerably advanced and price advantages are being held out to peasants for such earlier deliveries.

Can Profit More on Meat.

But the implication is that unless additional price inducements are provided the peasants will find it more advantageous to use their grain to fatten pigs and sell meat, which would mean a further breakdown of the delivery program.

This explains why Gen. Goering demanded in his speech that the German peasantry must "exterminate any parasite who withholds grain in the expectation of higher prices."

Explaining the shortage, the Frankfurter Zeitung said: "The actual supply situation has been misjudged because the yield of two unusual record crops in 1932 and 1933, in conjunction with reduced consumption due to the crisis, had given the appearance of a supply that could not be attained when the following three crops turned out to be only moderate and consumption increased again." A second reason is the substitution of grain foods for meat.

Hitler's Years of Plenty.

Taken together, the two reasons mean in the last analysis that the National Socialist [Naz] program of feeding the German people from their own soil in the name of "food independence," has been based on the accidental circumstance that Adolf Hitler's accession to power coincided with two record crops which could not be equaled later despite a considerable increase in grain acreage.

Therefore, the whole agricultural program of food autarky, which helped destroy the German foreign trade that had provided for food imports in former years, apparently has proved to be based on error.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 13.—(P)—Keenest anxiety is felt in American embassy and missionary circles generally over the fate of missionaries in Sianfu and Shensi province. There are more than a dozen American mission workers and their families in Sianfu. If communist troops imbue the Sianfu mutineers with anti-Christian and anti-foreign fanaticism, it is feared grave consequences may result.

Target of Threats

Mrs. Wallis Simpson receives hundreds of threatening and blackmail letters at Riviera villa of Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Rogers of New York. Many of the letters accuse her of attempting to wreck unity of British empire and are worded in coarse terms. Mrs. Simpson's host repeats she will remain at villa until after Christmas. bishop switched to praise of Queen Mother, Mary, Prince of Wales, Baldwin, and the new king, referring particularly to the happy united home life of George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

"We are now able," he added, "to look forward with hope and joy to the coronation of our new king."

He described George VI as "a frank, straightforward, unaffected" man, entirely on the strength of reports that King George will broadcast a message to the British empire at Christmas, the prime minister warned that the new king suffered an impediment in speech.

"But he has brought it into full control, and to those who hear it need cause no sort of embarrassment, for it causes none to him who speaks," the archbishop said.

Express Loyalty to New King.

The lifting of the ban imposed by the prime minister on the mention of Edward and Mrs. Simpson last week-end brought references to recent events from pulpits throughout Great Britain. Most preachers were content to deplore Edward's abdication and to express sympathy for Queen Mother Mary and loyalty to the new king.

But the Rt. Rev. Frank Partridge, bishop of Portsmouth, followed the line taken by the archbishop of Canterbury in rebuking Edward's friends. "That King George VI will be like his great ancestor Henry V. and set aside firmly from the outset of his reign all evil companionships and make friends among men of honorable position and good report we are well assured," said the bishop.

Those called to be kings, he added, must conform to the standard of life and conduct which kingship demands. The Very Rev. S. C. Carpenter, dean of Exeter, said in a reference to the change in monarchy:

"The church is relieved and happy at the passing of a scandal which would have cheapened the coronation, poisoned its sacredness, and robbed city and village of the simple happiness with which they are prepared to greet it."

Many preachers praised British newspaper editors for their "self-restraint" in handling Edward's affair with Mrs. Simpson.

Royal Family at Services.

King George and his daughters attended divine services this morning in the Danish chapel at Marlborough house where Queen Alexandra of England, the present king's grandmother, worshipped during her widowhood. Present at the services were Queen Mother Mary; the duke and duchess of Gloucester, her son and daughter-in-law; the princess royal, duchess of Harewood, Queen Mother Mary's daughter; the earl of Athlone, brother of Mary, and his wife, Princess Alice, countess of Athlone, the royal family.

The crowd, which had gathered earlier around Marlborough house to watch the scarlet and gold and white ruffled choir of the chapel walk in a procession from St. James's palace, cheered the king and the princesses as they drove away after the service.

Crowd Cheers King.

The king waved his top hat in response and his daughters waved white gloved hands. When the royal car reached the king's residence on Piccadilly a crowd, including many children, broke through the police lines and surrounded the car cheering the new sovereign. Similar scenes occurred when, later in the afternoon, the two princesses returned from a visit to Buckingham palace. Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose scampered up the steps while the excited Britishers pressed closely around the house. On the threshold both paused and waved a reply to the greetings.

Queen Elizabeth, who, it was officially announced, is suffering from a slight attack of influenza, did not leave her home at 145 Piccadilly. Her illness is not serious, it is said, but was aggravated by the strain of the last few days. Physicians advised the queen to remain indoors.

Queen Elizabeth suffered several attacks of influenza in the past few years. Last winter she had a serious attack of influenza pneumonia and was unable to attend the funeral of her father-in-law, George V.

Tomorrow George VI celebrates his 41st birthday—three days after his accession to the throne. At his own wish there will be no official observance apart from the firing of customary salutes in Hyde Park and at the Tower of London at noon and flying flags from public buildings.

No birthday honors will be issued, first, because there has been no time to prepare a list, and second, because of the imminence of the New Year's honors list.

Another royal birthday was celebrated today. It was that of the duchess of Kent who was 30 years old. The duke, who is King George's youngest brother, and the duchess spent the day quietly in their country home, "The Coppins," in Buckinghamshire, where they will remain until after Christmas. During the day they received messages of congratulations from Queen Mother Mary and other members of the royal family. George VI's first message to parliament will be read to the house of lords and the house of commons at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening. A customary address in reply, expressing the loyalty of the peers and members of commons to the king, will be moved.

These proceedings over, parliament's interest in the events connected with the change of the monarchy will, for the present, have come to an end. In the new year it will be necessary to undertake revision of the civil list allocating funds to the royal household.

Canadian Schools Close to Mark King's Birthday Today
OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 13.—(P)—Government offices, schools and many business establishments in Canada will be closed tomorrow in observance of the birthday of King George.

EDWARD REACHES CASTLE, EXILE'S HAVEN IN AUSTRIA

Ex-King Guest at Estate of Baron Rothschild.

is half annoyed and half pleased at the discovery. In any event, he was incapable of not acting the royal part himself.

Jumping lightly from the trainstep into the vacuum between police lines which held back spectators and other passengers from his private sleeping coach, Edward advanced with quick steps to the little knot of privileged guests—his host, Baron Rothschild, a tall man in a bowler hat, Sir Walford Selby, the British minister, and Austrian officials.

Carries Hat in Hand.

Edward was wearing a dark suit, a long, dark blue overcoat with an astrakhan collar and a blue silk muffler, and he was carrying his black hat in his hand. As various members of the party saluted him he shook hands, at the same time bowing with heels together in military fashion, neck stiff, his head, long and boyish, bobbing ever so slightly in the jerky but elegant fashion familiar to the news reel audiences the world over.

The whole scene lasted only a few seconds. Then the police whisked Edward out by a side entrance to the waiting car. Cameramen, forbidden to take pictures, broke through the lines in small groups and ran after him, firing magnesium bombs while the police tackled them like football players.

It was a performance which every newspaper man in Vienna had seen dozens of times in the past, yet it was somehow different. In the same way the train ride from France with Edward was like other journalistic caravans pursuing reluctant celebrities, yet different too.

Reporters Swarm on Train.

There was a celebrity isolated in the middle of an empty guarded coach. There were swarming reporters and cameramen jumping aboard the train in increasing numbers at

BARONESS ROTHSCHILD, EDWARD'S HOSTESS, PHILADELPHIA BEAUTY

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 13.—(P)—A former Philadelphia woman who once was well known at the court of King Edward VII of England became hostess tonight to his self-exiled grandson, the duke of Windsor.

The Baroness Eugenie Rothschild—the former Katherine Wolff, a native Philadelphian—and Baron Rothschild received the former King Edward VIII at their estate near Ennsfeld, Austria, as he sped away from the throne he discarded for a woman.

Baroness Rothschild has been close to royalty during many of the years since she left Philadelphia.

She was a granddaughter of Baron von Wulf, who came to this country, dropped his title, and later Anglicized his name. The baron's son, the father of Katherine, was a practicing physician in Philadelphia.

Following her parents' death she went to live with an aunt in Munich, and subsequently became a lady-in-waiting at the German court. There she gained a reputation for her beauty that she never lost. In 1934 a group of Paris dressmakers listed her one of the world's eleven best dressed women.

While abroad she married Dr. Danbridge Spotswood, a dentist and member of a Virginia family, in 1904. It was as Mrs. Spotswood that she became known in the society of the court of Edward VII in London.

The Spotswoods were divorced in 1910 in Paris. In 1911 she married Count F. von Schoenborn of Budapest. They were divorced some years later, and in 1924 the former countess married the Baron Rothschild, third son of the late Baron Albert Rothschild, head of the Vienna branch of the international banking house.

At every little station along the route newspaper men, fearing that Edward would try to give them the slip, dashed out, surrounding his coach, and creating endless confusion.

Finally a delegation was dispatched to Lieut. Col. Legh asking for a formal statement regarding Edward's plans. Then, at last, an official acknowledgment of the fantastic situation was forthcoming. Legh issued a statement announcing the duke's intentions of proceeding to Baron Rothschild's castle near Vienna—thus diminishing the fears that he might drop off at one of the winter sports resorts near Innsbruck which the train was then approaching.

Under cross-examination it was revealed that the name of Edward's Cairn terrier was "Slipper," named for his penchant for chewing up the once-royal house slippers. The dog's name was the subject of burning curiosity.

Edward Stretches His Legs.

Later Legh officially advised the press that Prince Edward would step out of the car at Salzburg to stretch his legs. This he did, while fifty or more reporters respectfully, but fixedly, eyed his every step from a distance.

In this picturesque fashion the world's number one ex-king and the gentlemen of the press, whose curiosity he was trying to escape, arrived together at Vienna.

Baron Rothschild's castle is situated near the little village of Ennsfeld on the Trieste highway, in the wooded foothills of what the Austrians call and Austria. There were the usual extravagant bribes to train porters for red hot news tips such as the following: "The former king is pacing up and down the corridor carrying his dog in his arms," or: "He has just ordered breakfast."

Once, between Basel and Zurich, I was able to walk through Edward's coach because the trainmen made the mistake of putting the dinner just ahead of his coach and there was no other way of getting to it. I almost bumped into him as he started to come out of his compartment carrying his little Cairn terrier under his arm.

Edward Looks Tired.

He looked tired, listless, desperately aloof. Until this afternoon neither Edward nor his old equerry, Lieut. Col. Piers Legh, took any notice whatever of the newspaper men besieging their coach. The other members of the royal exile's party, a valet and two English detectives, had orders to say nothing.

At every little station along the route newspaper men, fearing that Edward would try to give them the slip, dashed out, surrounding his coach, and creating endless confusion.

Finally a delegation was dispatched to Lieut. Col. Legh asking for a formal statement regarding Edward's plans. Then, at last, an official acknowledgment of the fantastic situation was forthcoming. In this picturesque fashion the world's number one ex-king and the gentlemen of the press, whose curiosity he was trying to escape, arrived together at Vienna.

Baron Rothschild's castle is situated near the little village of Ennsfeld on the Trieste highway, in the wooded foothills of what the Austrians call the "Little Alps." It is only a three-quarter mile auto ride from Semmering, famous winter sports resort.

Good Golf Course.

The park at the castle is full of all kinds of game besides stags. The golf course is particularly fine, as it affords a view of the distant mountains. Edward enjoyed both last September when he spent an afternoon at the estate together with Mrs. Simpson during his Dalmatian vacation. Another feature of the estate that greatly struck his fancy was the little chapel belonging to the village of Ennsfeld, but kept in repair by Baron Rothschild. He visited it twice during his visit at the village.

There are some who suggest that when Mrs. Simpson finally gets her divorce decree this chapel might serve as the setting for her marriage with Edward, but this is pure speculation.

The castle itself is about 150 years old and not very large. It is a two-story yellow stone building studded with towers.

WALLY IS TARGET OF THREATS; GETS BLACKMAIL NOTES

Letters Pour In on Her at Riviera Villa.

BY ALEX SMALL.

CANNES, France, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Hundreds of menacing and blackmail letters have been pouring in on the Rogers villa for Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, for whom former King Edward VIII. of England renounced his throne. Mrs. Simpson is staying at Lou Viel, the Riviera villa of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Livingston Rogers of New York.

Many of the letters, it is said, accuse Mrs. Simpson in the coarsest terms of having tried to undermine the unity of the British empire and call her vile names.

These sentiments correspond with those which The Tribune correspondent has heard among English winter colony residents at Cannes. From highest to lowest, they give a good cross section of British opinion.

Their views are unanimously sympathetic toward the former king and condemnatory toward Mrs. Simpson, whom they call "a designing woman." They deplore the idea they are prejudiced against Mrs. Simpson because she is an American. They insist that their only grievance is her two divorces.

Mrs. Simpson Writes Letters.

CANNES, France, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson devoted Sunday to reading and writing letters as former King Edward sped toward Vienna to await the time when he can marry her next April. Because of drizzling rain, she abandoned hopes for an auto ride.

Excitement about Cannes, which marked the first day of Mrs. Simpson's presence here after flight from England to await Edward's settlement of the British empire crisis which resulted in his abdication, was not apparent today as the former Baltimore belle began her second week at the Riviera villa of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rogers of New York.

To Stay Over Christmas.

Interest about her activities was confined to one question now—when will she leave to join the man who gave up his throne for her love?

Her own answer, reiterated by her hosts today, was that she will remain here until after Christmas at least.

It was indicated she would make no attempt to join Edward, now the duke of Windsor, until her divorce becomes final next April, but Cannes residents said they were convinced, nevertheless, that the two might meet briefly before long.

ROOSEVELT SON'S HOLIDAYS LIKELY TO BE IN HOSPITAL

Franklin Jr. Awaiting Sinus Operation.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 13.—(AP)—There may be no Happy Christmas at the White House for Miss Ethel du Pont and her fiancé, Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr.

The young son of the President, in a hospital here with a serious sinus infection, may not even be able to graduate from Harvard, his father's alma mater, next June, although friends are hopeful that his condition will improve sufficiently to permit him to resume his university work before spring.

Young Roosevelt was visited by his mother today.

His personal physician, Dr. George

Loring Tobey Jr., awaits subsidence of a fever, which has accompanied acute infection of an area under young Roosevelt's right cheek bone, in order to operate.

No Immediate Danger.

Dr. Tobey said the young man's chance of keeping his hoped-for date with the pretty Delaware heiress at the White House over the holidays is dubious. The doctor does not believe, however, the President's son is in immediate danger and Miss du Pont, leaving the hospital yesterday with a promise to return in time for the operation, put it this way:

"I'm not too worried, but of course, it is tedious and uncomfortable for Franklin."

Foresee His Graduation.

Meanwhile at Harvard, Franklin's classmates argue that barring an unusually long convalescence he ought to have no difficulty in completing his course. Harvard requires no senior in good standing to attend class and Franklin has that privilege. Although he entered the hospital late in November, he actually will have lost little time between then and late in January, even if he is unable to return to his studies until well after New Year's.

Charity Best Way to Stop Reds: Cardinal Mundelein

Associations of volunteer charity workers are the best insurance against the spread of communism, Cardinal Mundelein told the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, Catholic charitable organization, yesterday in the Palmer house. The annual report of the society showed that in the fiscal year ending Sept. 30 the organization served 21,423 needy persons and spent $823,874 for food, clothing, rent, fuel, and medical assistance for those in distress.

SEIZE 8 IN DOPE RAID AND CLAIM RING IS SMASHED

A police squad led by Sgt. Joseph Morrison raided a second floor flat at 3247 South Michigan avenue early yesterday, seized nine cartons of heroin, and smashed what they termed one of the largest dope rings in the city.

All except one of the eight colored men arrested in the flat have prison records as narcotic act violators. Four of them were on probation from federal prisons for drug peddling and a fifth was recently paroled from Joliet penitentiary.

The federal probationers are Nathan Banks, 36 years old, owner of the flat; Henry Hines, 38, of 26 West 59th street; Joseph Wilson, 31, of 3131 South Park way, and Frank Barker, 32, of 3843 South Michigan avenue. The others are William H. Bullett, 42, of 5423 South Michigan avenue and Harry Baladen, 28, of 3116 South Michigan avenue, both ex-convicts; James Brooks, 31, of 4232 Indiana avenue, paroled from Joliet, and Shelton Oliver, 22, of 5010 Vincennes avenue.

DOCTOR ADVISES POPE TO STAY IN BED FOR 10 DAYS

Pontiff Sits Up; Transacts Affairs of Church.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI. continued a very gradual recovery today from the illness that struck him down a week ago Saturday.

The 79-year-old pontiff must, however, spend most of the next ten days in bed and take the greatest care of himself, his physician emphasized after two visits today.

During the morning, he insisted on being carried to an arm chair near his bed and sat up for several hours to transact affairs of his church with Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, cardinal secretary of state.

He heard mass recited in an adjacent private chapel, but prelates said it will be many weeks before he will have sufficient strength to celebrate mass himself.

Reveal Anti-Red Activity.

And as they watched carefully the apparent progress of the holy father, Vatican authorities revealed a vast anti-communist activity throughout the world is being successfully developed by the Catholic church through bishops, priests and the Catholic action organization of laymen.

The pontiff's dislike of communism is well known and early in the Spanish civil war he attacked its spread in an address to refugees of the church from Spain.

Thousands of speeches, lectures and debates are given daily in all corners of the world by Catholic priests and laymen, Vatican authorities said today. An impressive number of books, booklets, weekly newspapers and reviews are coming out every day with a large portion of their columns illustrating the dangers and ambushes of the communist program and propaganda.

Pleased by Response to Plan. Reports of this world-wide activity reach the Vatican daily, as also do reports of communist activities in many countries.

"These first reports," an official said, "are considered an eloquent response to the admonitions and appeals which the holy father, with ever greater earnestness in recent months has launched to the world, as he did in his speech inaugurating the Catholic press exposition pointing out that communism was the gravest and most threatening peril of our times."

"This universal response is precisely what has been always the intention of the pope and the executors of his instructions, such as the sacred congregation of extraordinary ecclesiastical affairs."

The official declared that the director of the world-wide Catholic fight against communism is the pope himself and that no special international anti-communist organization exists which could be considered the representative of the holy see.

FIGHT ON FRANK MAY BOOM HIM FOR GOVERNOR

G.O.P. Watches La Follette Moves at Madison.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 13.—(Special.)—If the regents of the university, a majority of whom are appointees of Gov. Philip La Follette, oust President Glenn Frank on Wednesday they may start his career toward the Republican nomination for governor in 1938, even for President in 1940. That gossip is strengthened by the fact that he made many speeches helpful to the recent candidacy of Alfred M. Landon and is known throughout the country as a liberal Republican as well as an educator.

Wilkie to Offer Report.

At the regents' meeting on Wednesday they will receive both Mr. Frank's plans for the university during the coming school year and a separate report from a committee of regents. This report will be presented by Harold M. Wilkie, an appointee of Gov. La Follette, and leader of the opposition to continued tenure for President Frank. As Frank is regarded favorably by liberal Republicans, his retirement from the university probably would be regarded as the signal to start his boom for governor in 1938.

At that time Gov. La Follette will have completed his third term. He is variously viewed as desiring the other Wisconsin senate seat, his brother Robert M. La Follette now holds the senior place, or as wanting to be president of the university until 1940, when he might head a third national party.

Frank from Missouri.

President Frank is 49, a native of Queen City, Mo. He was assistant to the president of Northwestern university, 1912 to 1916, and is the holder of honorary degrees from the Uni-sity of Michigan, Northwestern, De Pauw, and Lincoln Memorial. He did research work for Edward Fella, Boston businessman. Mr. Frank was brought from the east eleven years ago to head Wisconsin. At that time Zona Gale, author and a regent, was one of the committee to offer him the job. Yesterday she protested that the reputation of the governor and the university would suffer if President Frank were removed.

AUTO SKIDS OFF ROAD INTO TREE; TWO ARE KILLED

Find Bodies in Wreckage
South of Hammond.

Carl Wendel, 35 years old, and Lawrence Banner, 22 years old, both of Crown Point, Ind., and both married and fathers of children, were killed yesterday when their automobile skidded off the pavement and was wrecked against a tree in U. S. highway 30, 10 miles south of Hammond. No one saw the accident. The victims were found dead in the wreckage of their car by Leonard Huelman of Chicago, a Greyhound bus driver.

Mrs. Patricia Lepo, 60 years old, 3124 Lowe avenue, was killed last night, and five other persons were injured in a head-on collision between their car and another automobile in front of 8300 Archer avenue, Lyons township. Those hurt were her son, Joseph Lepo, 40, and his wife, Isabel, 37, both of the Lowe avenue address, who were in one car, and Arthur G. Landgren, 37, and Carl Johnson, 35, and Coy Sharpe, 31, all of Lemont, who were in the other machine, which was driven by Sharpe. They were taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital. After Sharpe's injuries were dressed he was held for the inquest.

Girl Killed; Two Injured.
Regina Wrzenski, 16 years old, a Gary high school girl, died early yesterday of injuries incurred Saturday night when the automobile in which she was riding with a party of students skidded and struck a telephone pole in La Porte, Ind. Another girl and a boy were injured. They were on their way to the La Porte-Froebel basketball game.

The two injured were Agatha Baltrukonis, 17, of 1320 Adams street, Gary, and Albert Bulsa, 21, of 1705 Jefferson street, Gary, the driver. Miss Wrzenski lived at 10th and Madison streets, Gary.

John Suto, 40 years old, 2346 Birch street, Hammond, was killed last night by a car in Indianapolis avenue near his home. The driver was Anthony Novak, 945 Reese street, Hammond.

Car Overturns; Driver Killed.
Carroll O. Barton, 31 years old, 7249 Ibsen street, a printer, was killed early yesterday when his automobile skidded in State road and overturned after crashing into a tree as he attempted to turn into Central avenue in Arlington Heights. His brother-in-law, Arthur Creech, who was with him, was thrown clear of the car and incurred only minor injuries. Creech lives with the Bardon family.

Traffic Injuries Are Fatal.
Herman Friebe, 30 years old, 3641 North Neva avenue, died yesterday in the County hospital from injuries incurred Thursday when he was struck by the automobile of Henry Kac, 23 years old, 1627 South Scoville avenue, Berwyn, while crossing the street in front of 7311 Addison street.

Frank Zavadi, 65 years old, 1941 South Racine avenue, died in the County hospital yesterday of injuries incurred when he was struck by an automobile at 12th street and Allport avenue on Nov. 19. The driver was George Stepih, 19 years old, 1606 South Loomis street.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 991 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 745 were killed in Chicago. In the same period 18,603 were injured in traffic accidents in the city.

Two Parolees Arrested; Found Drunk in Tavern

Martin Garrity, alias Marty Demo, 25 years old, 2236 Washington boulevard, and John Steinert, alias Munzo, 24 years old, 2742 Haddon avenue, both parolees, were arrested yesterday in a tavern at Western avenue and Superior street. West North avenue police said the men were intoxicated, constituting a violation of parole.

SINGING MOUSE TAKES REFUGE UP SHIRT SLEEVE

But He Finds Garment Is

The mouse that sings like a canary at the Chicago Industrial Home for Children in Woodstock was in captivity again yesterday after a chase through the kitchen of the home. Oscar Allred, manager of the home, who calls the musical rodent "Mickey," captured it on Thursday but it escaped on Friday when he was trying to transfer it from a fruit jar to a wire cage. Mr. Allred, then locked up the cat and started a search. After all was quiet Saturday night, he heard Mickey's chirps in the kitchen and summoned Herbert C. Gensch, superintendent of the home.

Mickey Gets Into a Jam.

The two tall, bespectacled churchmen, in their shirt sleeves, had an exciting time during the midnight hour, chasing the mouse from corner to corner. Finally Mr. Gensch got his hand, almost on it and the little rascal ran up his right shirt sleeve to his armpit.

"Help! I've got the little pest," shouted Mr. Gensch, thrusting his right arm into the air and feeling gingerly for the mouse with his left hand through his shirt.

"What do you mean, you've got it?" retorted Mr. Allred, who hadn't seen the sleeve running maneuver and who was still running about the kitchen in his search.

New Scheme of Operations.

Just then the mouse dropped down to Mr. Gensch's belt-line and started to race around and around under his shirt.

"Help me catch it," he yelled, as he started dancing around the room.

"Do you think I want to get bitten?"
"It isn't a biting mouse; it's a singing mouse," replied Mr. Allred as he realized the situation and went to the rescue.
Together the two men worked out a bit of strategy. The mouth of a fruit jar was thrust inside the front of Mr. Gensch's shirt, just above the belt, and the mouse in one of its round trips ran into the opening and was again a prisoner. In putting it into the cage this time, there was no slip.

Just Like Professional Singer.
Yesterday morning Mickey sang while 43 children in the home were at breakfast and the steady chirps could be heard throughout the large double dining room. But yesterday afternoon the mouse got its feet wet in a jar lid of drinking water, and quit singing. The children were afraid it was going to be sick.
The mouse usually sings several minutes without stopping. It starts with a soft whirring trill, the chirps coming so close together that they provide a continuous tone, according to Mr. Gensch. This grows louder to an intensive crescendo and then jumps two notes higher for another crescendo. Staccato chirps, Mr. Gensch said, intersperse the song at times.

How to Get That Tremolo.

The mouse's white stomach quivers and vibrates when it performs. Its body is 2 inches long, its tail 3/4 inches long.

People who hear the mouse usually say, "Well, what do you know about that?" and shake their heads. Among those who went to hear it yesterday was an 86 year old man, who declared he had never seen anything like it before.

ALL SIGNS POINT TO NEW 'CRACK DOWN' POLICIES

Trade Commission Bids for Added Powers.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—(Special.)—All signs point toward a fresh "cracking down" on business by the 75th congress convening in January. The federal trade commission, which already has begun administration of the drastic Robinson-Patman "anti-chain store" act, announced today that it would ask congress for an increase in the powers flowing to the agency from the organic statute creating it. The recommendation spotlighted the commission's report on operations during the last fiscal year.

The sought-for powers would enable the commission from proving at a hearing that the defendant had in any way injured competitors. It was difficult in many cases, the commission bluntly pointed out, to prove such injury, and besides development of the evidence involved much time and expense.

Would Divorce Wholesaler, Retailer.

At the same time proponents of the "anti-chain store" legislation at the last session of congress have a new one to pull out of the hat, it was learned from an authoritative source. The measure, practically ready for tossing into the legislative hopper, would provide for the separation of wholesaler and retailer somewhat after the manner of the proposed segregation of stock market broker and dealer under mandate of the securities and exchange commission. The theory underlying the Robinson Patman act was that no buyer

ELECTORAL COLLEGE VOTE FOR PRESIDENT WILL BE CAST TODAY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—(AP)—For those who like a good, safe bet tomorrow's presidential election, offers opportunity.

The electoral college's 531 members will meet in their respective state capitals to ballot on Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred M. Landon. If custom-violated only once—is followed, Mr. Roosevelt should get 523 votes to eight for the Republican nominee.

The eve of the electoral college voting found the machinery set for a smooth runoff, with a single minor exception.

Court contests in three Rhode Island towns, arising out of the first use of voting machines in that state, have tied up the certifying of official results. The expectation, however, was that the board of vote tabulation would meet tomorrow morning to certify results of federal and state candidate elections on Nov. 3. This would clear the way for the state's presidential electors to cast their vote later in the day.

should be allowed to have an advantage over another through the granting of a discount in any form. The plan now being hatched would prevent a man in the wholesale or manufacturing business from giving himself a discount in his own retail trade.

Linked with this activity are even more radical projects for the regulation of business down the line, from Henry Ford's vast automotive empire to San Jones' crossroads country store. What constituted a revival of the invalidated NRA under a disguise was approved by the so-called "Council for Industrial Progress," which met here last week under sponsorship of the President's federal coordinator for industrial cooperation, Maj. George L. Berry, politically ambitious left wing labor leader.

The plan would provide for the setting up of minimum wages, maximum hours, regulations for advertising and prices, and "fair trade practices" for all lines of business and industry. The business man who refused to comply with the federal edict would be found guilty of "unfair competition" and punished. If not the same as the defunct NRA, the scheme would have the same result as that attempted under the Blue Eagle.

Will Seek Roosevelt's Support.

Berry has announced that he will take his program to the White House first to solicit support and then hand it over to congress for passage.

President Roosevelt's ideas of what should be done toward further goose-stepping of business are as yet unknown. His position on the NRA was enigmatic during the recent campaign. It is believed, however, that he will lend a sympathetic ear to Berry's plan, since the latter founded and built up "Labor's Nonpartisan league" for Roosevelt. On the other hand, business leaders in recent weeks have adopted a conciliatory attitude toward Roosevelt.

The federal trade commission's report on its activities for the last fiscal year under the chairmanship of Charles H. March, one time Minnesota Republican, contained a brief but highly significant passage on the new powers to be demanded of congress.

Following the technical changes suggested in the law, the commission said:

"In many cases it is very difficult, if not impossible, to show a specific injury to competitors, even though injury to both competitors and the public is manifest. The development of such evidence involves much time and expense. The government should not be subjected to this expense.

"In the interest of expedition and consistency in enforcement of its orders, the commission renews its recommendations that Section Five affirmatively provide that court review may be obtained by the commission without first proving the order has been violated, and that upon affirmation the court shall issue its own decree commanding obedience to the commission's order."

"The commission also renews its recommendation that its orders shall become final and conclusive and violation thereof punishable as a contempt of court if a respondent does not apply for court review within sixty days after the order is issued."

The commission has issued complaints against makers of cosmetics, cheese, yeast, and other products.

MANY SEE PEACE PACT DRAGGING U. S. INTO WARS

Fear Menace in Link to League Sanctions.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—(Special.)—Far reaching implications that may affect profoundly the foreign policy of the United States are discerned in the conventions designed to preserve peace that are being entered into at the Inter-American Conference for the Maintenance of Peace, now sitting at Buenos Aires.

In particular the agreements intended to league the twenty-one American republics in a solid front against the menace of a European war may determine whether the United States shall or shall not become involved in such a conflict. Administration officials generally profess the utmost confidence that the new peace machinery being constructed by President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull will operate powerfully to keep us out of war. Others are not so sure that it will not tend to drag us in.

Consultations in Crisis.

The collective security pact, which Mr. Hull yesterday pronounced the "strongest assurance of peace this continent ever has had," provides that, if the "peace of the American republics should be threatened," they would consult on measures to meet the crisis.

According to the administration, the potentialities for the preservation of peace inherent in the project are tremendous. By means of such consultation, it is contended, the American republics could adopt unanimous embargo and other neutrality measures that would minimize the aid the belligerents could obtain in the western hemisphere. They were parties to the chances of any of the American nations being drawn into a European conflict.

Link to Punitive Measures.

On the other hand there are those who see in the plan the possibility that it would operate to induce or to rationalize the adoption of a policy at Washington of participation in the war measures of Europe. The European powers never have ceased to endeavor, by one means or another, to commit the United States to cooperation with the league of nations in punitive measures against a belligerent that is voted by the league to have been the aggressor.

Many of the American republics are members of the league of nations and as such are committed to join in any measures decreed by the league for the coercion of the belligerent declared an aggressor. They were parties, for example, to the various forms of coercion invoked against Italy in the late war between that nation and Ethiopia.

Free to Aid League Program.

Mr. Hull stated specifically yesterday in Buenos Aires that nothing in the collective security pact interferes to the slightest degree with the obligations of any signatory to "other peace agencies." Therefore the convention releases no American member of the league from its obligation to associate itself with coercion of an aggressor designated by the league.

DAVIES ATTENDS SOVIET PARTY

ROOSEVELT TO REACH U. S. TOMORROW; SHIP IS OFF THE BAHAMAS

AT SEA WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The President and his party were jubilant today as the U. S. S. Indianapolis steamed over the calm waters off the southern Bahamas. It meant they soon would be sailing in home waters for the first time since they left Charleston, S. C., Nov. 18, to go to the Inter-American peace conference at Buenos Aires.

The flotilla is due in Charleston at 7 a. m. Tuesday. The destroyer Phelps joined the U. S. S. Chester escorting the Indianapolis today. The Chester catapulted four scouting observation planes off its decks.

The President attended church services in the morning, looked over some mail, and sunned himself on the deck.

Any war that develops in Europe, it is pointed out, is likely to be deemed a menace to the peace of the western hemisphere. Thereupon the American republics would consult upon the emergency. The American members of the league would be bound to take sides according to the action of the league in designating the aggressor. The question then would occur whether the United States would stand out against the overwhelming opinion of the American republics under the collective security pact as justification for a course of cooperation with the league. Of course, so soon as we should begin to observe the sanctions of the league we would be in the war.

Both Internationally Minded.

Both President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull are internationally minded to a notable degree. Both were ardent supporters of the league as designed by Woodrow Wilson. Mr. Roosevelt declared against American membership in the league only when he was compelled to choose between the league and William Randolph Hearst's support for the nomination in 1932. Recently he said in South

U. S. BEGINS NEW DRIVE TO LOWER TRADE BARRIERS

Equality of Treatment Is Sought by Hull.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The United States today launched before the Inter-American peace conference a renewed drive to liberalize the trade programs of the American republics.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull introduced two resolutions providing the conference go on record for equality of treatment in international trade and for reduction of excessive trade barriers.

The conference will devote considerable attention to trade questions. This was brought further in evidence when the Mexican and Peruvian delegations also introduced economic resolutions and other delegations served notice they were considering bringing up pertinent subjects.

Sees Aid to Peace.

Hull's resolution for equality of treatment declares that the American republics "are convinced the growth of international trade can serve greatly to strengthen the foundations of peace by improving the material welfare and contentment of nations."

It declares the benefits may be achieved only "if governmental policies which convey special advantages create resentment and dispute between nations and frustrate the peaceful ends trade should serve."

The resolution then declares the American republics reaffirm the Montevideo declaration that "the principle of equality of treatment stands and must continue to stand as the basis of all acceptable commercial policy."

Hits Discriminatory Policies.

By the resolution each nation "announces its determination to bend every effort toward the objective of enforcing the peaceful and equitable principles of equality of treatment and discouraging in every practicable fashion discriminatory preferential trade and exchange controls and bilateral clearing compensation agreements which may be discriminatory."

The resolution also pledges that the nations will "refrain from seeking preferential treatment in international trade."

Hull's second resolution provides that the American republics:

1. "Shall proceed with the definite objective of reducing unreasonable and excessive trade barriers of all kinds."

2. "Declare the earnest intention of so directing policies as to avoid to the utmost extent the possible creation and imposition of any new obstacles to importations."

3. "Affirm the intention that in all new action which directly or indirectly affects imports from the subscribing nations that they will be guided by the unconditional most-favored-nation principle and any advantages they extend to any other country in the future will be extended to all subscribing countries."

Asks Tariff Truce.

The Mexican proposal provides for a tariff truce during which all American republics will engage in the negotiation of new reciprocal pacts or modify existing pacts so as to extend all benefits to all American nations. The Peruvian resolution provides for the negotiation of pacts giving equal treatment among American nations and limiting the benefits exclusively to the American republics.

33 U. S. CITIZENS MAKE A MILLION OR MORE IN 1934

Group Included 513 Back in Lush 1929.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—Thirty-three Americans received incomes in excess of one million dollars during 1934, or a decrease of seventeen millionaires from the year before, according to a statistical analysis of income tax returns made public today by the bureau of internal revenue. The returns were filed last year.

This group of 33 millionaires enjoyed an income of $7,775,000, but their enjoyment was short lived since they were forced to pour $32,211,000 into the receptive coffers of the United States treasury. Members of the exclusive little coterie paid a tax of 59 per cent on their surtax net income.

One Makes Over 5 Million.
One lone individual in the United States had an income of more than 5 million dollars for 1934. The internal revenue tables showed that this person is a resident of New York, but the identity is hidden, for no names are named in this report. One person received more than 5 millions in 1933 and that year was a resident of Illinois.

In addition to the five million dollar man, 21 had incomes of more than one million dollars during the year, four had incomes of more than one and a half millions, six were between the two and three million marks, and one had an income between three and four millions.

The big year for millionaires was 1929, when a crop of 513 appeared on the scene. Then came the depression and in 1930 there were only 150 persons with million dollar incomes. The number was cut almost in half, to 77, in 1931 and reached the lowest point in 1932, when only 20 millionaires were left. The number shot up to 50 in 1933.

Details on Payments.
Individual income taxes collected during 1934 amounted to $511,400,000. Payers by categories ranging from those with incomes of less than $1,000 up to those with more than $1,000,000, amounts and percentages are shown in thousands of dollars in the table which follows:

Category	Amount	Percent

1 to 2	8,559	1.69
2 to 3	7,567	1.48
3 to 5	18,849	3.59
5 to 10	43,088	8.43
10 to 25	83,860	16.42
25 to 50	84,907	16.61

1,000 and over	32,211	6.29
Totals	$511,400	100.00

The returns of individuals reporting net income for 1934 totaled 4,094,420, of which 1,795,920 were taxable and 2,298,500 were nontaxable. The aggregate net income on the basis of these returns was $12,796,802,082, of which $8,343,558,221 represented taxable returns. Total returns increased 10 per cent over 1933.

The average net income for 1934 was $3,125.42 for all returns and $4,645.84 for taxable returns as compared with $2,956.48 average net income and $4,218.40 for taxable returns for the previous year. Tax liability on taxable returns increased from an average of $214.06 in 1933 to $284.76 in 1934.

population was 3.2 per cent in 1934 as compared with 3 per cent in 1933. A total of 310,456 filed returns in Illinois for 1934 and paid taxes amounting to $40,398,845. The net income on Illinois returns was $1,006,927,934. Illinois was topped by New York with a net income of $2,811,720,784 and tax of $166,789,731, and Pennsylvania with an income of $1,067,788,870 and tax of $44,423,725.

The bureau also reported a total of 12,724 in estate tax returns filed with a tax liability of $155,466,000. A total of 6,742 gift tax returns were filed and taxes of $83,383,000 paid.

ASYLUM INMATE ESCAPES; GUARD HOMES OF HIS KIN

Police squads last night were guarding the home of Clarence Hayes, 37 years old, 810 Leland avenue, and the home of his brother-in-law, James Danigan, 6414 Bosworth avenue. Early yesterday Hayes escaped from the Elgin insane asylum, where he was committed two months ago as a paranoic. Danigan told police that Hayes, before his commitment, and in letters smuggled from the institution, often threatened to kill every member of his family if he escaped. Hayes' wife, Mary, and their three children live at the Leland avenue address.

FLORIDIAN TALKS 200 HOURS; GROWS WEAK IN ORDEAL

Ocala, Fla., Dec. 13.—(AP)—For approximately 200 hours, 44 year old Howard Stillman has talked almost incessantly. Today, as his body grew weaker and weaker, physicians said they still were unable to assign a cause or find a cure.

Dr. J. E. Chalker said "some undetermined organic disorder, perhaps some mucous condition of the brain," apparently is responsible for the condition.

The man began talking Saturday, Dec. 5, and since then he has slept once, very briefly, and taken but little food.

Occasionally Stillman sings. He is able to answer questions rationally.

PERMANENT CCC, RULED BY CIVIL SERVICE, URGED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Continuation of the Civilian Conservation corps as a permanent agency and application of civil service to administrative posts in the system was urged today by Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work.

"It is decided that the CCC should be removed from the 'emergency' agencies to become a more or less permanent feature of our governmental policy," Fechner said in his annual report. "It is strongly urged and recommended that all positions therein, save enrollees and intermittent workers, should be placed under the classified civil service."

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those who seek to move forward.

INTEGRITY

By CALEB

THE gas station helper rushed over to the regular attendant for change, and returning to his customer, dumped it in his hand. The customer glanced over the silver and bills.

"Here, lad," he said. "You've given me a dollar too much."

"Well! I certainly thank you, sir. I'll give it to the boss."

Just then the boss stepped up. "Too much change? Well, I certainly appreciate your giving it back. Not many people would."

The young man smiled. "I'm with Marshall Field and Company. We sort of get in the habit of trying to do the right thing, down there."

PSYCHIATRISTS and psychologists could tell you in a learned way why some people are stanchly upright and uncompromising in character. Simply stated, it seems to us that some people are morally and ethically tall enough to see over a fence—and some are not. Anyone can who stands on tiptoe to try.

Anyone who does not try to be big is apt to feel that he is within this fence—apart from the world. And anything that falls within—or that may be snatched and pulled within his fence—is rightfully his.

Those who stand up and look out see that the fence is imaginary. If you look over it, it's gone. There are other folks out there! They're all part of one world. A careless sea of time and events and troubles and pleasures flows over them all.

There is no possibility of living selfishly within the personal fence, keeping unmerited gains—without at the same time having the fence confine and hold in the distresses and losses which might otherwise get out.

Personal integrity is a matter of stature—of stature of character. If you can look over a fence which seems to isolate some individuals from a knowledge of their obligations to the world—you'll probably want nothing that doesn't belong to you.

Every year more people come to realize that society evolves for itself, not for the individual. In the long run, no group can gain and enjoy any great benefits without other groups sharing in the advantages. If the gaining groups try to hold all the benefits for itself it loses them.

It is a good thing to be in a good business. We like to have this business make some contribution to the characters of the people who work within it.

Returning a dollar too much change at a gas station is a far cry from "the good life" for society generally. But the "good life" will come. Unending little incidents, individually unimportant, help bring it about.

TRAFFIC CLUB LUNCHEON TO AID GOOD FELLOWS

Party Thursday to Raise Funds for Needy.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Headed by Benny Fields of the Chez Paree and Olsen and Johnson of the Palace theater stage revue, a program of a dozen acts will be given Thursday noon at a Good Fellow luncheon to be held by the Traffic club of Chicago in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House.

One thousand men are expected to attend and from the proceeds several hundred baskets of food—tots and candy will be bought and taken on the day before Christmas to unfortunate families in the city. A second Christmas party will be held the day the baskets are distributed, around a huge tree to be erected in the Chicago Tunnel company's warehouse at 754 Jackson boulevard. From there the members of the Traffic club will take the baskets to brighten up the homes of those who would have a sorrowful Christmas morning unless there were Good Fellows.

The First Good Fellow.

One of the features of the luncheon entertainment Thursday will be a skit, "Cross Roads of Time—March of Good Fellows," which will depict the life story of the late Edward C. Fitch, the first Mr. Good Fellow. A talk on "The Spirit of Christmas" will be given by Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of Presbyterian Theological seminary.

The theatrical program will last 90 minutes and will include male choruses, radio and opera stars, a magician and Lew Diamond's orchestra. The entertainers will include the Old Heidelberg Octet and the Railway Express Glee club; Mari Barova, mezzo-soprano, and John Pane-Gasser, tenor, of the Chicago City Opera company; Margot Rebell, soprano, of W-G-N; Lulu Belle and Scotty, of WLS, and Prof. Kaltenmeyer (Bruce Kammen), who will bring one of his kindergarten pupils with him. Harry McEvoy will Club Groups Sponsor Acts.

A. H. Schweitzer, traffic expert of the Association of Commerce and chairman of the public affairs committee of the Traffic club, is chairman of the Good Fellow program and will be toastmaster. The various acts are being sponsored by these club groups: Express, airlines, truckers, publishers, railway, shipper, water carriers, and purchasing.

In the second of a series of radio talks over W-G-N concerning the Good Fellow campaign sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Methodist Episcopal church last night praised those who take baskets to unfortunate families at Christmas time. He said: "The path of good fellowship leads away from the land of sadness and loneliness to the land of joy and gladness."

A brief address will be given by the Good Fellow editor at 12:30 p. m. Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock the speaker will be Bishop Bernard J. Sheil of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago.

Won't You Help the Cause?

Christmas is drawing near—a time which should be the happiest in the world for boys and girls and mothers and fathers, too. Won't you be a Good Fellow and bring joy into the homes of those who are needy? Plan today for your basket. You can obtain the name of a worthy family in need by sending in the Good Fellow coupon or calling Superior 0190 and asking for the Good Fellow bureau. Its headquarters are in THE TRIBUNE's public service office at 1 South Dearborn street. There you may read for yourself the hundreds of letters asking for Christmas cheer.

CATCHES TWO PAROLED CONVICTS.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Patrolman Walter Schlopp early today found a restaurant door open. He stepped inside and was met with four shots from two guns. He fired five times and two paroled convicts surrendered.

AT AGE 3 JOHNNY HAS HIS FIRST CHRISTMAS PARTY—AND HIS LAST

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Little 3 year old Johnny Hernandez, who is dying at the county hospital here, smiled with contentment today.

Johnny enjoyed his first Christmas party, and a gala affair it was. A tree, decorated with lights, tinsel and with a star at the top, stood in his room. For the first time in his short life he received holiday presents.

Johnny's Christmas celebration started today and will probably continue throughout tomorrow. It must all be over by tomorrow night, his nurse, Rose Bernstein, said, because Johnny's condition is very serious.

It was because physicians feared he would not live until Dec. 25 that the nurses held Johnny's Christmas party this early. The boy is suffering from Ewing's cell sarcoma, cancer of the bone. Dr. James Martin, the hospital's medical adviser, said the disease is almost always fatal and cannot possibly be checked now in Johnny's case.

Johnny, son of an impoverished Mexican family, entered the county hospital three months ago. He didn't know about Christmas until nurse Bernstein told him about it.

President's Granddaughter to Get Doll Made Here

A life sized rag baby doll will be forwarded to the White House at Washington, D. C., today to be presented on Christmas day to President Roosevelt's 9 months old granddaughter, Katherine Roosevelt. Katherine is the daughter of James Roosevelt. The Christmas gift was made by the Chicago part time girl workers of the National Youth administration.

PITY THE SNAKE! SEEMS IT TAKES TOO MUCH BLAME

Expert Who Knows Says
Few Are Poisonous.

Snakes are a sadly maligned group of creatures, Dr. H. K. Gloyd, director of the Chicago Academy of Sciences, said yesterday in a lecture in its Lincoln Park building. There are upward of 700 varieties of snakes in the two Americas, he said, and less than 10 per cent of them are poisonous. And that 10 per cent is hunted down and destroyed by harmless varieties.

The most dangerous snake of the western world, said Dr. Gloyd, is the central American bushmaster, both because of its size and the dread potency of its venom. In the United States, he said, the most dangerous species are the moccasins, especially the cottonmouth, which is the only venomous water snake in America, and the many varieties of rattlers.

Blasphemy a Popular Fallacy.

Dr. Gloyd, who has devoted more than 10 years to the study of North American poisonous snakes, exploded the popular fallacy that it is possible to tell the age of a rattlesnake by the number of its rattles. This is no test, he said, because a snake may add from two to five segments in a year.

"The rattlesnake," he said, "has control through well developed mouth muscles over the amount of the poison it injects into a victim after it has sunk its fangs.

When it comes to treatment, whisky or alcohol in any form is definitely harmful, said Dr. Gloyd, and so are all the other home remedies. Potassium permanganate usually does more harm than good. Serum now on the market is effective if used in sufficient quantity.

First Aid All Can Use.

"Some of the best results, however, are obtained by incision and mechanical suction," he said. "This method has been perfected by Dr. Dudley Jackson of the Robert B. Green hospital in San Antonio, Tex., and small first aid kits are now on the market which permit a layman to use it in the field."

"The method consists of applying a slight tourniquet between the bite and the heart. The wound is then cleaned with some common antiseptic, such as iodine. It is deepened with a knife provided for the purpose, and a suction cup then is applied to it."

CONFESSES 300 BURGLARIES; 11 TRIPS ON ONE JOB

Dining Room Table and 6
Big Chairs Taken.

Eleven trips to and from the home of Irving Fox, 38, Briar place, on the night of Nov. 13 comprised one of the 300 burglaries confessed yesterday by Paul Petri, 28 years old, to the Sheffield avenue police and Assistant State's Attorney Blair Varney.

On each trip he took as much as he could carry to his own apartment, said this burglar who was captured for the second time Saturday night by Policeman John Ellis after a battle in a garage at 2567 North Clark street which was witnessed by the policeman's 5-year-old daughter, Anna. Six chairs in the Fox home required six trips. On another trip he carried out a dining room table. The total value of his loot from the Fox home was $1,500.

Caught, but He Escapes.

It was after his last trip from the Fox home that Petri first was arrested. Detectives seeking his loot took him to 2651 Burling street, where he then was living, and handcuffed him to the arm of a chair. Petri smashed the chair and escaped with the handcuff dangling from his wrist.

Policeman Ellis was off duty and walking with his daughter Saturday evening when he recognized Petri at Clark street and St. James place and persuaded him to enter a nearby garage for questioning. The burglar, who is three inches taller than Ellis and outweighs him by 40 pounds, wrestled and fought when the policeman told him he was under arrest, but Petri was overpowered.

Bad News for Lawyer.

One person whose home Petri looted does not know of it yet. He is Attorney Lawrence Nelson, 434 Deming place, who is out of the city. Petri said he took $200 worth of miscellaneous clothing and other valuables from the Nelson home a few hours before his arrest Saturday.

Autoist Seized; Policeman Charges He Offered Bribe

Philip Isenberg, 28 years old, 7627 East End avenue, an accountant, was arrested yesterday by Park Policeman Clarence Veach on a charge of attempting to bribe a police officer. He will appear in Traffic court today. According to Policeman Veach, Isenberg failed to heed his signal to stop for other traffic at 33d street and the Inner drive and then offered the policeman a dollar to tear up a court summons slip.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Boom! They're Off!

YESTERDAY ANNIE RECEIVED THE BEAUTIFULLY WRAPPED 'CHRISTMAS' PACKAGE--SUSPECTING THE TRUTH SHE HURLED IT OUT THE WINDOW, STRAIGHT AT 'SLIGGER' JAKE AND 'BOMBER' MIKE, WHO LURKED BELOW--

SUCH A HOLE IN THE GROUND IT MADE IT WAS ONLY ANNIE'S QUICK WIT THAT SAVED OUR LIVES--

YOU SAY THOSE TWO RACKETEERS WERE STANDING RIGHT HERE?

YES--WHEN I SAW 'EM I HAD A MUNCH WHAT WAS IN THAT PACKAGE--

SO I YELLS--"THERE YUH ARE, WISE GUYS, WITH LOVE AND KISSES,"--AND CHUCKED IT RIGHT AT 'EM--

YES-YES? AND SO-O-O?

SO IT WENT OFF WITH AN AWFUL BANG--IT SURE PEPPERED 'EM GOOD, TOO--YOU SHOULD HAVE SEEN 'EM TEAR OUT O' HERE--

TCH! TCH! SO THEY RAN AWAY--THAT'S BAD! WHEN THEY COULD RUN AWAY THEY COULD COME BACK--

HEAD OF ILLINOIS LEGION HEARD BY 250 AT LUNCHEON

Jacksonville, Ill., Dec. 13.—(Special.)—Matthew J. Murphy of Chicago, department commander of the Illinois American Legion, addressed 250 representatives at a luncheon conference here today attended by Legion officials from more than thirty posts.

Accompanying Commander Murphy were Lester Benson of Chicago, state service officer, and William Kieth of Chicago, department employment officer.

Three schools of instruction for Legion officers were held at a morning conference preceding the luncheon. A closing feature of the conference was the presentation of membership cards by posts in the district.

Lyle Snavely, Bloomington, aid to the department commander; Walter Hagler, Springfield, commander of Sangamon post; Floyd Putnam, Canton, third division commander, and Francis Scully, Chicago, chairman of the child welfare committee, were among prominent Illinois Legionnaires present.

The Greatest Sales Analysis ever made ... based on OHIO'S TOTAL RETAIL SALES

● Here is marketing information that is surprisingly different.

It isn't guess and it isn't hope. It's the actual record of Ohio sales tax collections, store by store, city by city, for the entire state of Ohio (276,417 retailers).

It's the guidepost—definite and accurate—as to where Ohio's retail volume is located. It gives the per capita consumption and shows the relative importance of one area as compared with another.

But best of all, it reveals the flow of merchandise to the actual consumer, whether he lives in a metropolitan city, town, hamlet or rural area.

It will give you basic facts and figures never before available.

It eliminates the "behind the desk" guesswork because it brings to your hands "out in the field" sales facts. These facts will guide you in establishing sane quotas for 1937.

This timely mass of information, based on the official Ohio State Retail Sales Tax collections, will help you in both your sales and your advertising plans.

We shall be glad to give you the benefits of this analysis. It is too elaborate for mailing but we shall present it, in your office or in ours, at your convenience. Write for an appointment.

OUR PURPOSE

In presenting this data is to show the relative importance of:

- 1 The sales volume of the various areas of Ohio, and . . .
- 2 The types of stores which supply this sales volume, in order that . . .
- 3 The advertiser may adjust his sales and advertising program to actual conditions guided by the first authentic records on this subject ever gathered.

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER

Cleveland's HOME Newspaper

Not long since, dude ranching in our big southwestern territory completely outgrew any available printed description of it. So we dug in, down to the grass roots, and finally evolved a ranch book that tells the story of our winter and summer ranch country in New Mexico, Arizona and California, and of nearly 70 fine places there, as it has never been told before. It is yours at a word.

DOLLARS DOWN—COMFORT UP

We've lifted the downright comfort and enjoyment of a California trip, via the Santa Fe, beyond belief—yet dropped the cost tremendously. First class, tourist or coach—this winter's fares are loved in Santa Fe history.

$57.35 This phenomenally low winter round-trip coach fare, Chicago to California and return, is on sale to May 14, with 6 months' return limit. In air-conditioned Santa Fe chair cars, with deeply cushioned reclining seats, broad windows, generous dressing rooms—plus free pillows, drinking cups and porter service, and low-cost Fred Harvey meals.

$68.80 This winter's economical round-trip tourist car fare, in the finely reconditioned standard Pullmans of but a few years ago. On sale to May 14, with 6 months' return limit. Berth extra.

$86.00 This low first-class round-trip winter fare is also on sale to May 14, with 30-day return limit. Berth is extra.

FIVE FINE CALIFORNIA TRAINS Daily. A famous fleet of swift, modern, air-conditioned Santa Fe trains serves the California traveler: the once-a-week speedster, The Super Chief; the daily Chief, California Limited, Grand Canyon Limited, Scout and Navajo.

BUS OPERATORS DECLINE TO END STRIKE IN FLINT

Reject Proposals to Work
Pending Arbitration.

Flint, Mich., Dec. 13.—(AP)—By a vote of 103 to 3, striking drivers of Flint trolley buses refused today to accept proposals that they resume operation tomorrow, pending arbitration, of idle transportation facilities here, which have left workers, school children and Christmas shoppers literally stranded for six days.

The vote was taken at the request of L. E. O'Connor of the United States department of labor, who said, after he had been informed of the vote result, that he had no further plans to bring about a settlement of the strike. He said he would remain here at least until tomorrow night.

At that time the city commission, which yesterday revoked the franchise of the Flint Trolley Coach, Inc., operator of the system, was expected to make their action absolute unless service is started some time during the day.

The men, who have remained inside company garages since the start of the strike, are demanding a wage increase from 55 to 75 cents an hour. The proposals voted on today provided that the men return to work tomorrow at the old rate of 55 cents an hour, the wage scale to be arbitrated immediately, or that they return to work at 60 cents an hour, with the wage scale to be arbitrated at the end of the year.

Settlement of the strike of 133 employees of the Gordon Baking company in Detroit was foreseen when the men left the plant after remaining inside for six days. The company agreed to close the plant until negotiations are completed.

Employees of both the Kelsey-Hayes company and the Aluminum company also have left the plant pending negotiations, which are scheduled to be resumed tomorrow.

100 Deputies Guard Mine.
Park City, Utah, Dec. 13.—(AP)—One hundred armed sheriff's deputies patrolled this mile-high silver center today, on guard against a recurrence of strike rioting in which forty men were beaten yesterday.

1,000 Troops Battle Fire at Tel Aviv Fair Grounds
TEL AVIV, Palestine, Dec. 13.—(AP)—One thousand troops were required tonight to extinguish a fire on the Levant fair grounds which razed the Tel Aviv stadium, the Jewish Labor federation pavilion and four boats lying offshore. The grounds are in the northern part of Tel Aviv.

WPA 'SITTERS' HOLD THE FORT AND ASK HELP

Whiling away the time with card games and impromptu entertainment, twenty-seven men and seven young women spent their second day yesterday in the Federal Works Progress administration offices on the second floor of the Merchandise Mart. They are waiting a sit-down strike as protest against the recent discharge of workers from several boom-doggling projects.

At least 200 pickets are expected to go on duty outside the WPA offices at 5:30 o'clock this morning. According to leaders of the newly formed city projects council of the Chicago WPA, which has taken charge of the "sit down" protest. A committee of the council delivered hot foods, bedding, and clothing to the strikers last night.

The strikers are in a small windowless room behind the main office. Guards have been stationed at the outer door into the corridors to prevent any sympathizers from joining the group, but messengers are allowed to enter with food. In the halls outside a crowd of fellow workers stood about all day yesterday.

Demands of the Demonstrators.
The strikers include representatives of the Illinois Workers' alliance, the Technical and Research Employees union, the Adult Teachers' union, and the Theatrical Artists' union. They demand that no workers be discharged by the WPA until they find jobs in private industry, and also ask that all recently discharged workers be reinstated.

Charles E. Miner, deputy WPA administrator for Illinois, visited the strikers yesterday. The leaders asked that sitters be readmitted if they went outside for conferences and that substitutes be let in if any of the thirty-four had to depart in an emergency.

Miner turned down both requests, informing the strikers that they would not be bothered as long as they remained orderly, but if any one of them left he could not return or be replaced. He said also that any further requests should be made in writing and would be forwarded to WPA headquarters at Washington, D. C.

Prepared to Stick It Out.
Sidney Loeb, secretary of the Artists' union of Chicago, one of the strikers, said: "We are prepared to stay here as long as necessary to enforce our demands."

Decks of cards were smuggled into the strikers' room and groups played bridge during the day. Some of the artists sketched and gave chalk talks. Robert J. Dunham, state WPA administrator, has denied statements put out by the strikers that tomorrow the local WPA quota would be slashed by 20,000, or 25 per cent.

The direct cause of the protest was the discharge last week of 200 persons from the four so-called boom-doggling projects—music, the theater, the painters and the writers. These projects are federally sponsored and are not affected by the state basic quotas.

WPA officials said that on orders from Washington the nonrelief personnel on these projects has been reduced to 10 per cent of the total and, in addition, lack of funds forced the dismissal of some of those employed on these projects who need relief.

1,000 DRUG STORES CLOSE IN 'STRIKE' ON 'CHISELERS'

New York, Dec. 13.—(Special.)—More than 1,000 Brooklyn drug stores were closed temporarily today in a sweeping protest against "unethical competition."

From 2 to 6 p. m. the public had to phone police in order to get prescriptions filled and also learned what it was to go without the free services provided by druggists—telephone booths, stamps, change for a bill, or a glass of water.

The 1,105 drug store owners held a meeting of indignation at the Hotel Bossert, Brooklyn. They passed resolutions condemning stores which, selling many articles at cut rates, profit by failing to employ a full-time pharmacist.

Members of Consolidated Brooklyn Retail Pharmacists, Inc., declared they would fight to have the law enforced on stores that permit soda dispensers or mere Sunday clerks to make up prescriptions which should be handled only by pharmacists.

EXPECT N. Y. OLD GUARD OF G. O. P. TO LOSE POWER

New York, Dec. 13.—(Special.)—The Republican state committee will meet here tomorrow for a showdown which is expected definitely to eliminate the old guard leaders who have dictated the party's policies in New York state for years.

G. O. P. progressives in bitter revolt against old guard reactionaries, blamed for alienating popular support from the party, are expected to seize full control. They will launch the party liberalization demanded by former Justice William F. Bleakley, re-elected Republican nominee for governor.

Edwin F. Jaekle, Erie county leader, seemingly holds a strong lead in the fight to succeed Melvin C. Eaton as state chairman. Eaton has resigned.

Jaekle, who opened his attack on Eaton a year ago with charges that the chairman was "controlled by the big money crowd," will train his guns also on Eaton's old guard allies, Charles D. Hilles and Mrs. Ruth Baker Pratt.

LOW COST HOUSING.

There is renewed talk in Washington of large appropriations for what is called low cost housing. The idea is politically potent, suggesting, as it does, better living quarters for city people at a considerable saving in rent.

It is possible, of course, for an owner to offer a house at a rental far below that which the cost of the building would warrant. That course has been recommended to the government by some individuals and perhaps such a program could be called "low cost housing" on the theory that the cost would be low to the tenant though high to the government and the taxpayers. It would clarify thinking about the subject a good deal if those who favor such a program called it a program for "subsidized housing" and thus avoided all confusion.

For a variety of reasons low cost housing [if by that is meant new buildings which can be rented without loss to compete with old ones] is not likely to be achieved. From the moment of completion buildings gradually lose value and in spite of expenditures for upkeep and repairs tend in time to become valueless. It is therefore highly improbable that space in new buildings, constructed by private capital or by the government, can be rented as cheaply as space in greatly depreciated old buildings.

It is true, of course, that some economies can be achieved, in theory at least, by large scale operations such as the government has undertaken and is contemplating. These savings, however, can be greatly exaggerated. The government can borrow at low interest. Likewise, materials can be bought in quantity to advantage. Factory methods of production will help here and there, but true factory economy is not approached in house building, wherever the builder may be, and cannot be attained until there has been a revolutionary change in union rules, if then.

Other things being equal, then, a house in a large scale government project might be rented at something less than a new house privately built, but it cannot be rented at less than an old house unless the tenant is subsidized. As a matter of fact, there is small reason to expect other things to be equal. Experience teaches that construction by the government is generally much more costly than private construction.

However strict the personal honesty of the government's designers may be, they are not subject to the discipline of the balance sheet. They are spending other people's money. Our battleships and our postoffices alike testify to the fact that government architects are prone to specify every gimmick that the ingenuity of salesmen can suggest. Accordingly, government costs are generally much higher—often two or three times higher—than they would be if the construction were for private account.

It may be true that the costs of the houses which the government is now building will not be quite so excessive as has been suggested, but it should be remembered that an extraordinary effort has been made to effect, as favorable a showing as possible on these first ventures. If appropriations for housing become a matter of routine, like appropriations for dams and postoffices, the costs must be expected to mount rapidly.

If such buildings are then rented at low cost the subsidy will be very large.

NON-STOP SERVICES.

In its natural evolution a railway, airway, bus or boat line first provides vehicles or conveyances that stop at every point along its route where passengers or freight may be available. Next, as certain towns or stations offer increased patronage, they are linked by faster, limited stop schedules, usually known as "expresses." Following these tendencies to a logical conclusion, transportation companies must eventually operate at least one fast conveyance the full length of its line or route without a stop.

Necessarily, the vehicle must first be perfected for this arduous performance. The air lines are nearest the goal with several non-stop flights between Chicago and New York. Like the steamship, the airplane quickly developed a wide cruising range, but the locomotive faced a sterner task in overland transit. A few years ago engine changes at 100 mile intervals were necessary, but these have been lengthened until the Santa Fe is able to announce the construction of new locomotives capable of covering the run to Los Angeles with a single change at La Junta, 991 miles from Chicago. Apparently the railway machine is here.

Englishmen are already experimenting with non-stop runs for their longer rail services. A test train was recently operated from London to Glasgow. The distance of 401 miles was negotiated in less than six hours, the locomotive with its standard train maintaining an average speed of 68.2 miles per hour.

Railway travel in the United States reached its peak in 1920, after which the competition of inter-city automobile travel commenced to make itself felt. Then came a long downward curve in patronage until, in 1933, it had reached a third of its former total. During this long drought of earnings the blossoming of additional trains could scarcely have been expected, but now that the public has commenced to respond to railway convenience, speed and comfort, it is time for the lines to step forward again.

Perhaps non-stop runs to New York would be a little too radical just at present, but single stop efforts, say at Cleveland and Pittsburgh for the Century and Broadway, should be made. With the English schedule before the officials of the New York Central and Pennsylvania, American railways could easily attempt overnight runs to New York in thirteen or fourteen hours as a starter.

THE INTERNATIONAL WAR IN SPAIN.

Fascist Italian flyers in Spain are dropping Milan made bombs on anti-Fascist Italians in the trenches around Madrid. The anti-Fascist Italians are fighting in the international legion which has been recruited for the Madrid government.

Gen. Franco, head of the insurgents, is said to be running out of Moors and to be hoping for numerous replacements of what the Spanish loyalists humorously describe as Aryan Moors, meaning Fascist German recruits. It's apparently anybody's civil war in Spain, with interested participants from Russia and Africa and with a sprinkling of Americans.

Adventurous men will always seek to attach themselves to one side or another of a fight, but it is remarked of the Spanish civil war that two systems of government, one represented by Hitler and Mussolini, the other by Stalin, are starting to have it out, using Spain as a battleground. That, however, is nothing new in history.

In our own revolution France fought out a quarrel with Britain and was joined by Spain. The armies which marched in the American revolution were curious mixtures of many people. There were Hessians under Howe in New York and New Jersey. There were Brunswickers under Burgoyne in the descent from Canada ending at Saratoga. There were French under D'Esterre assisting or not assisting Sullivan in the futile attack on Newport. Rochambeau's army of Frenchmen was under Washington at Yorktown. The Spanish occupied Florida out of Louisiana and advanced north as far as St. Joseph, Mich.

The British used Indians, principally the Iroquois. The headquarters of Gen. Washington were crowded with more European soldiers of fortune than could possibly be used. Von Steuben tried to make the American continentals over after the pattern of the European troops of the time. Kosciuszko and Pulaski made names for themselves in American history and no mention need be made of Lafayette and De Kalb.

France and Spain in America then were attempting to injure Great Britain, which had whipped them in the Seven Years' war, from the hurt of which they were still smarting. Temporarily they got what they wanted when America won its independence. Much of the same thing is happening in Spain, although as yet Germany and Italy have not declared war on the Madrid government.

It will be remembered that the Kaiser, now at Doorn, almost got himself into trouble and did get himself thoroughly disliked by expressing his sympathy with the Boers when England went to war in South Africa. It was quite natural that the army with which William of Orange overthrew James II. should be composed of Swedes, Dutchmen, and Germans because William's army in his continental wars was so composed.

Aggressive governments which have purposes to accomplish by force use opportunities where they find them and commanders will always take good soldiers wherever the material is available, regardless of race, color, or creed.

LEGISLATION ON CRIME.

Thomas L. Rice, who conducts an interesting and useful column in the Brooklyn Eagle and who was formerly a member of the New York state crime commission, suggests the need for a compilation or digest of the principal laws passed by every state legislature and by congress to strengthen and speed up criminal justice.

If this will assist, as it should, better information and cooperation for the improvement of defense against crime throughout the country, Mr. Rice's proposal should be acted upon. In the existing situation important measures passed in one state are not given attention elsewhere and real gains are lost or unnecessarily postponed. Mr. Rice cites several excellent laws now operating in several of the states which have not received the general attention they deserve from all legislatures. He also urges that the proposed digest should include important measures defeated several times before public opinion forces their adoption. A more alert demand in another state might compel adoption of a good law before action in the state of original introduction could be brought about.

There is certainly need for better information in this field. As Mr. Rice remarks, there are many instances of highly desirable laws working satisfactorily in one or more states while other states remain unnecessarily handicapped in their fight on crime through ignorance of what sister states are doing. His proposed digest would be a valuable source of knowledge for all individuals and agencies interested in improving our control of criminality. The appropriate committee of the American Bar association would do well to take Mr. Rice's suggestion into consideration.

Editorial of the Day

HAS HIS NUMBER STILL.

[Deatur (Ill.) Herald.]
Al Smith may be definitely and finally out of the high councils of the Democratic party of his state and nation, but how are you going to convince any New York precinct captain that when Al's limousine comes down the street next year bearing the shiny new license plate number 4?

The great American passion for low auto numbers, and for trick combinations of numbers, probably adds thousands of dollars to the necessary costs of administering state licensing departments. No matter so long as the popular conviction lasts that a low number denotes influence in the capitol, low numbers will be sought and a terrific squawk would be raised by the legislature that tried to abolish the system.

All over the country the politically potent—and those who used to be potent, holding still a priority right—are demanding for 1937 the favorite combination of figures they have had in the past. Nowhere else perhaps has a state government gone further to oblige the sentiment than has Ohio, which by keying its numbers with letters is able to provide an impressive No. 1 for nearly every county boss.

EATING INTO PROFITS.
Resting under a paw-paw tree, two young Coon Hollowites gazed dolefully at the rows of black eyed peas yet to be gathered. Nearby were several bulging toe sacks of that never failing Arkansas crop; and from this hoard the pickers were to get their remuneration—"half of what you pick." Emmy Lou mourned. "I don't mind pickin' 'em," she said, "efn we jest didn't have to eat our pay."

I AM SO RICH!

I have no need, nor ask if I have less
Than any fellow-man to praise Him for;
I am so rich! One being is too small
To hold the joy of all unalloyed—
(No plummets here to scar the perfect space,
No children crying for the sun, no fear
Of blood between the noon and night!)—Our lean
Clean-limbed ones thrust a wilderness aside
And planted cities deep in living soil,
Planned well for towers at the furrows' end.
I who am rich am so because my dear
Eyed fathers dreamed of peace, and dreaming, built;
I have so much, I do not ask if I
Have less than any fellow-man. I thank Him for my heritage, my privileged part:
Serene the land, serene the singing heart.

RETURN TO EARTH.

We are all tired out with urbane sophistication, dished from Mayfair drawing rooms by rapid literateurs whose claim to distinction is measured by the fit of their clothes. Back to the homely earth, men. A bus city slickery and vice la Hometown. Maw, right now, is belling at us from the kitchen, wants us to drive her over to Eddie's Wonder Barre, where we'll stop a chili and get a noggin of ale. Maw'll get Eddie's receipt for cheese soufflé and tomorrow test it out on the Woman's club. That's fancy 'tixn, but her social standing will be assured for another two weeks.

MRS. SMITH of Hometown has settled for the local financial wizardry of the town of a call loan. "That's when some one calls at the kitchen door to borrow something, maybe butter or eggs," she said.

WHO SHOT ELMER?

"No," cried Tom and Jerry.
"He tried to get too merry.
So with just one little shot
We put him on the spot."
"No," twas I," said Manhattan.
"The glutton tried to get on
On the liquor of the land;
Just one shot had him in hand.
I shot Elmer."

Norris V. Pk.
Norris asserts that a jury decided the claimants were equally guilty. Tom and Jerry and Manhattan each "half shot Elmer." And another correspondent, Nertz, stoutly maintains that Elmer wasn't shot; he "only voted for London." The mystery of Elmer grows apace. That every one may have a chance at solving the case, we'll reprint the original problem tomorrow.

NOTORIOUSLY ADDICTED.

There he dour persons who do not care for puns, regarding them as below the dignity of the serious. Fish and tush! To dislike a pun is to decay pendency. We pass on a quotation of a quotation of the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table, thus: "The Puritans hated puns. The Bishops were notoriously addicted to them. The Lords Temporal carried them to the verge of license. Majesty itself must have its Royal quibble. 'Ye be burly, my Lord of Burleigh,' said Queen Elizabeth, 'but ye shall make less stir in our realm than my Lord of Leicester.' The gravest wisdom and the highest breeding lent their sanction to the practice. Lord Bacon playfully declared himself a descendant of 'Og, the King of Bashan. Sir Philip Sidney, with his last breath, reproached the soldier who brought him water for wasting a cascade full on a dying man."

CURRENT REFRAIN.

Only ten more shopping days!
What'll I do? What'll I do?
Marian likes to laugh, and Faye's
Prone to sentiment—Mina, too.
Helen wants ART with capital A's—
What'll I do? What'll I do?
Only ten more days until Christmas is on us. What'll I buy?
I know the very gift that will Suit 'em all. A LINEBOOK! Why
Didn't I think of that before?
Mina and Faye get verse galore;
Laughs for Marian, by the score;
The cover will just take Helen's eye
That is the present I will buy!
That would give any one a thrill!
Ten more days? I don't need one!
I've got all of my shopping done!

STICKING TO FACT.

I once heard a famous clergyman tell a story that I thought was pretty good. It concerned a minister who went visiting and was interviewed by a 5 year old girl. "Is God everywhere?" she asked. The minister assured her this was true. Rapidly she asked if God was upstairs in the house, downstairs, on the front porch, and in the kitchen. Affirmations continued. "And is he in the cellar, too?" the quizzier insisted. "Certainly," the divine said. "That's funny," said the little girl; "I haven't got any cellar."

SIR: WHILE he was speaking, I said "Edifying!" When Sykorus asked me what I meant, I replied: "Edifying precedes—" Then I ducked.

THE EX-KING made it plain that he did not value the job highly. He is not a Republican.

THE VALUE OF BROMIDES.

WITHIN recent years a flood of drugs has come upon us—all designed to allay nervousness and to promote sleep. Many of these are derivatives of barbituric acid, which is not always a harmless compound. The time has scarcely arrived, however, when we can make an accurate evaluation of these agents. The period of observation has been too short. A fair percentage of the population will exhibit symptoms—from time to time—of emotional instability. This state of affairs is thought to be on the increase, perhaps as a result of the widespread economic and social unrest and the uncertainty that permeates individual planning. At any rate the use of sedatives in certain cases may be desirable and necessary. In this group there should be included only those drugs that remove the tension of the emotions, that are not habit forming, and that will not seriously upset metabolism.

We must not forget, in our search for something new and bizarre, the sound therapeutic value of the bromides. They have been known for a century and there is little ground to believe that they will prove poisonous if their administration is carefully controlled. In fact, they are probably less toxic than other chemicals with like effects. Many authors state that fatal poisoning is unknown, although following large doses, oft repeated, stupor and confusion may supervene.

There are but few medicines that may be taken with impunity and the number of household remedies that should be kept regularly in stock is not large. In this list I should not favor the inclusion of any hypnotic or sleep producing drug, not even bromides. We are on safe ground when we assume that no drug should be used under any circumstances unless there is a clear indication for it. Physicians are called upon to manage cases of neurasthenia, hysteria, and many of the nervous symptoms incident to the menopause in women, and here the bromides serve as useful medicaments. Even the fight against chronic alcoholism may be aided by them. In some instances they work so beneficially and with such small doses—5 to 10 grains a day—that no other drug or combination of drugs can quite replace them.

For many years the bromides have been the chief standby of physicians in the treatment of epilepsy and there is apparently no basis for the statement made by a few authors that they bring on or accelerate mental deterioration. It is possible that there has come about a confusion between the effects of the disease (epilepsy) and that of the bromides, as in some instances the disease itself is characterized by a progressive mental slowing. In fact, recent research has shown that whenever the bromides reach a certain level of concentration in the blood even severe epilepsy may be brought under control.

Various salts of bromine have been used, such as sodium, potassium, ammonium, and strontium. We must understand, however, that they are in no sense curative. They serve merely as a buffer between the nervous system of the patient and the irritation which would be responsible for jittery instability. A minimal amount may reestablish mental poise and efficiency.

We must recognize also that people differ in their reactions to drugs and that there are some persons who will exhibit an unusual degree of susceptibility. Several cases have been reported in which a dosage of approximately 50 grains per day, continued for a period of six weeks, gave rise to constipation, loss of appetite, and hence weight reduction. Later nausea and vomiting appeared and the patient was dull, stupid, and apathetic for a week or more subsequent to stopping the drug.

We may conclude with justice that these preparations are valuable in many types of excitability. Their employment, however, must be guided scrupulously by an observant physician and a cooperative patient.

A CORRECTION.

President R. C. Willard of the University of Illinois, a distinguished ventilating engineer, calls my attention to a typographical error in a recent article in this column under the caption "Asphyxia from Carbon Monoxide." This occurred in the opening sentence of the fifth paragraph, reading: "We can recover without untoward symptoms from an AIR saturation that does not exceed 20 per cent of carbon monoxide. But when the blood contains as much as 30 to 40 per cent, collapse is imminent." The word "air" was used in the first sentence instead of "blood," as would appear from the sentence which followed.

President Willard observes correctly that there is probably danger in an atmosphere which shows a concentration of carbon monoxide as low as 1/2 of 1 per cent.

The mistake was caught by others, including J. I. Banash, a consulting engineer of Chicago.

TRENCH MOUTH.

1. What causes trench mouth?
2. Is there a cure?
3. Is it dangerous to kiss a person who has trench mouth?

1. Neglected oral hygiene, extensive tooth decay, ill fitting dental appliances, abscesses, abuse of alcohol, etc., etc. In a well cared for, healthy mouth the disease will not manifest itself. Mouth washes are useful, and sodium perborate is among those recommended.

2. Yes. Follow the treatment prescribed by a competent dentist and the disease will be cured.

3. Yes. Trench mouth is contagious and can be transmitted by kissing.

WHY DRINK IODINE?

V. P. writes: Can the drinking of iodine cause a person to lose the sense of taste? If so, what can be done?

REPLY:
If the iodine has destroyed the taste buds on the tongue nothing can be done about it. Why drink iodine? It is poisonous in any appreciable quantity.

NOT HARMFUL.

R. B. P. writes: Is there anything harmful about taking a cup of hot water with lemon juice in the morning?

Neither harmful nor advantageous—unless you require additional alkalis.

LONDON.—The urge from government quarters to prepare against aerial gas warfare has stimulated the local authorities generally in the industrial towns of Lancashire and Cheshire not into alarmed activity, but rather into a steady building up of various kinds of defensive measures.

A number of councils are still at the stage of first consideration, or projected consideration, of the home office circular on precautionary measures. Some have instructed their officials in the appropriate departments to prepare schemes. Others are expecting visits from home office experts who are going to discuss defensive measures with them.

Lancashire county council has held several area conferences of local authorities and is arranging to hold 1000 exposition such a great success.

Liverpool, like Manchester, is making defensive plans on a comprehensive scale. Six members of the city police force who have qualified as first class instructors will give courses of training in anti-gas measures to members of the police and fire departments of Liverpool, Bootle, Southport, and St. Helens. The home office is supplying a mobile gas chamber as an instrument in such training.

Already experiments have been made by the Liverpool police in the rescue of public alarm sirens from the roof of St. George's hall. Gas detectors are to be enrolled as special constables in charge of Prof. Roberts, the city analyst.

The city engineer will deal with the provision and organization of rescue parties, road repair gangs, decontamination parties—streets and buildings—and decontamination of vehicles. It is estimated that about 1,600 men will be required for these services, all of whom will require anti-gas training. A group of the city has been prepared by the engineer showing the various depots which might be used for these purposes.

The organization of base hospitals, casualty clearing stations, and first aid and decontamination centers will be in charge of the medical officer of health. A list of all the available ambulances, complete with staffs, has been made by the chief constable. In an emergency, however, the number would be insufficient, and it would be necessary to approach private firms to assist by providing suitable vehicles. The home office has requested an officer of the corporation to attend the anti-gas school at Faldes, Gloucestershire, for training as an instructor in decontamination of materials.

ESTATE ADMINISTRATION.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People].—Last July an aunt died in Indiana. There are six heirs, one of whom is the aunt's brother and who is administrator.

1. Is there a time specified by law for filing an appraisal of the estate?
2. Do all the heirs have to sign this appraisal before any of the property can be sold?

The administrator has announced [3] he does not intend to settle the estate for one year, and at present [4] he is living in the home which was left.

5. Does the law permit him to do this?
6. Has he any more right there than any of the other heirs?

7. What steps should be taken to evict him or force him to pay rent to the estate?

8. How should the rental price be set?

H. E. S.

1. In general, there is no legal requirement of appraising real estate for all cases.

2. This is the usual procedure.

3. He should pay rent unless there is a law providing otherwise.

4. See 3 and 4.

5. No, as far as the facts stated are concerned.

6. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the portion of sale.

7. If the parties cannot agree partition would be the remedy.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—You are a hit and run driver. You were driving on Oakley boulevard Friday morning, Dec. 4, 1936, around 7:30 or 7:45 and you hit a man—an old man. He was my dad. He was on his way to a store to buy something for his children's breakfast. You left him lying there on the street. You didn't have enough decency in you to pick him up and take him to a hospital.

Why didn't you face it like a man? You'll never rest; you'll never get it off your mind because that man died Saturday morning without ever regaining consciousness. If you could have been there and seen his poor, pain racked and torn up face you would never rest. If you are a father, think what it would mean to your children if you were to die like that.

For God's sake, come and tell us how it happened, so we can rest.

THE GREAT QUESTION.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Stripped of verbiage and romance, the English situation simmers down to about this: Sanctimonious Stanley Baldwin, martin of mediocrity, compelled Edward to choose between a home with a wife and a throne with a mistress. The great question now is whether Mrs. Simpson was in love with the man or Edward the king.

Upon the answer to that question much depends. If she has the greatness of soul to really be a helpmeet for Edward in this day of trial, then we predict that Edward's abdication will result in another chapter being written for England's unwritten constitution, a chapter which will enable future kings of England to marry without regard to station in life, in that case Edward wins.

STATE TO PUSH DRIVE ON SALES TAX CHEATERS

Drastic Action Planned; Many Called to Court.

Drastic action was promised yesterday against hundreds of storekeepers who are collecting the 3 per cent sales tax from their customers, but not paying the money over to the state. Judge Eugene L. McGarry of the Racket court and Assistant Attorney General Mortimer Forges announced they will press a campaign to collect every penny of delinquent taxes from retailers. The state is planning a system that will prevent this petty theft of pennies from the public.

Judge McGarry has issued between 75 and 100 warrants for storekeepers and corporations accused of withholding the tax money. Last week he heard cases involving twelve alleged tax cheaters, imposing fines of $500 each against several of them. Officials of five corporations are to be arraigned before him Thursday.

Collect Million from Cheaters.
"In the last month we collected $210,000 in delinquent sales tax money," Forges said. "During the eight months I have been assigned to this task a total of more than a million dollars has been collected. From now on we are going to show the tax cheaters we mean business."

Investigators reported to Prosecutor Forges that hundreds of small tavern owners, restaurant operators, and owners of fruit, candy, grocery, and cigar stores keep no books showing the amount of their tax collections, and have paid nothing to the state. Then, when the state makes demands on them they try to minimize their gross sales.

"Some places report sales of only a few hundred dollars a month and offer to settle on that basis," the prosecutor explained. "Our investigators then check the records of wholesalers and find that these tax dodgers buy several thousand dollars worth of merchandise a month."

Time Needed for Enforcement.
"It took four or five years before the federal government was able to enforce the income tax collections efficiently. Therefore it is not strange that the state has not perfected an unbeatable system in three years of the life of the sales tax."

"We need cooperation from the police department. The law, as amended by the legislature in July of 1935, provides all retailers must have a certificate of registration pasted on their windows, and no firm owing the state money can be issued a certificate. Consequently the policeman on the beat should be able to tell, month to month, whether or not the owner of any store has turned over to the state his previous month's collection of the sales tax. "The Illinois Supreme court last Thursday gave the state the right to make an arbitrary assessment when the retailer fails to file a tax return, as well as to prosecute for failure to do so. With additional assistance we expect to start a great many criminal as well as civil actions soon."

One Way Law Is Evaded.
"We have found that many cheaters keep two sets of books. Many automobile sales agencies, which are operating on shoestring, have given us some trouble in collecting because finance companies own the cars and when a sale is made such dealers pay the finance companies and have only profits left for themselves, so they pocket the sales tax."

"The dealer is required to collect and pay over to the state the 3 per cent tax on the full value of an automobile. For instance, if a car sells for $1,000 and the dealer takes a second hand car in exchange and allows

FOUND SLAIN

Mrs. Arthur C. Utterback, 33 years old, wife of an official of the Federal Land bank in Wichita, Kas., who was found in a shallow grave behind their home strangled and beaten to death with an ax. Joe Cain, an itinerant farm hand employed on the couple's farm until recently, is being sought.

$400 on it, he must collect and pay the tax on $1,000, not on $600." Judge McGarry said the cases on his call for next Thursday involve delinquent taxes aggregating $25,000. The charge on which he has issued warrants is failure to make a tax return. The law provides a penalty of a fine of $25 to $5,000 and up to one year in jail.

The Effect of Convictions.
The conviction of one retailer usually brings about voluntary payments of delinquent taxes from three or four others in the same neighborhood, the judge said. In flagrant cases Judge McGarry said he would impose jail sentences as well as heavy fines. One scheme to avoid tax payments, Judge McGarry said, is the fictitious changing of ownership of stores by fake transfers of title or pretended foreclosures.

Two Held on Complaints of Annoying Children

Le Dan Congrove, 21 years old, of Grand Island, Neb., a truck driver, was arrested yesterday at 18th street and Wabash avenue by Park Police-man Joseph Cerney after a girl, 11 years old, said that Congrove tried to molest her. Edwin Lakowke, 31 years old, 2645 North Kimball avenue, will be arraigned this morning in the Town Hall court on charges of annoying several small children near the home of Samuel Ford, 2151 Vilas place, Saturday night. Ford and a passing police squad rescued Lakowke from a crowd of angry neighbors after a chase.

Radiant Opera Season Closes $45,000 in Red

Average House 65 Pct. of Capacity.

BY EDWARD BARRY.
As the curtain fell last night on the final act of "La Juive" the Chicago City Opera company's 1936 season passed into history.
And history in a way it certainly was. The six weeks of the season were the most brilliant six weeks of opera which Chicago has known since pre-depression days. The casts fairly glittered with stars of the second and even the first magnitude. An important American opera ("Jack and the Beanstalk") received its first professional performance. Works whose scenery was resignedly preparing to rot in the warehouse were revived and successfully produced. Two highly successful Misses of very tender years were launched upon the world and the great Amelita Galli-Curci made a start on what she hopes and believes is to be a second career. Chicago heard Wettergren and Lawrence for the first time.
Enough people came to the Civic Opera house for the thirty-seven performances of the season to keep the big building filled, on an average, to about 65 per cent of its capacity or a little more. There were several sell-outs, several disastrously ill-attended performances.

These customers brought to the boxoffice all the money needed to defray the costs of the season—except about $45,000 or $50,000. This is slightly more than was lost last year, but the performances of this season were infinitely better. The exact amount of the deficit, whom the money is owed to, and how it will be paid are matters which will be worked out during and after the company's annual meeting scheduled for next Tuesday.

There are to be two weeks of popular priced opera at the Civic Opera house beginning Jan. 11. The fourteen performances of this "spring" season will be cast and directed by the Chicago City Opera company and sponsored by the Catholic Youth organization.

Present plans for next year call for a three week tour in October and a seven week Chicago season, Oct. 30 to Dec. 18.

The astonishing Swedish Choral club works secretly away through most of the season in some obscure corner of the city, but moves into Orchestra hall at Christmas time and again in the spring to let the public hear what it has been doing. The first such invasion took place yesterday afternoon when Handel's "Messiah" was sung before a huge audience.
Under Harry T. Carlson's expert training, this chorus has become something which deserves national recognition. Whether total beauty or musicianship be the norm the Swedish Choral club may be given an extravagantly high rating.
As to the former, the entrance of the soprano on the first noble phrase of the chorus "For unto us a Child is Born" challenged all local records for sheer loveliness of choral texture. About the latter, the bloom of immortality on Handel's prodigious music is never blighted by affected bits of phrasing or merely showy climaxes. The oratorio's dignity was matched by its performance.
Assisting the Swedish Choral club were Lillian Gustafson, Virginia Auer, Edwin Kemp, and Marston Pearson (soprano, contralto, tenor, and bass, respectively). Accompaniments were the charge of Stanley Martin, organist, and forty-five members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Mr. Carlson conducted.

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra, which consists of 15 nonprofessional musicians all engaged for the bulk of their time in some other line of work, honored its founder and patron, the late George Lytton, in a memorial program at the Goodman theater yesterday morning. Mr. Lytton, who established the orchestra in 1921, died on Dec. 9, 1933.
At yesterday's concert, for which all seats were taken, George Dasch, present conductor of the orchestra, led his men through a program comprising Schubert's Unfinished Symphony, an Albert Chorale, the Tchaikowsky Andante Cantabile, and Beethoven's third "Lenore" overture. Merrill C. Meigs, scheduled for a brief talk, was detained in the east. Avern B. Scolnik, Chicago lawyer and member of the Business Men's orchestra, took his place and spoke on the character and ideals of Mr. Lytton.

To the Studebaker theater yesterday afternoon came Clara Martin and Eusebio Concaldi, she to dance the dances of Spain, he to sing the songs of that country and of several others.

Mrs. Martin's work is rich in the overtones of her sparkling personality. She boasts imagination as well as technical address. Her idea of what the well-dressed Spanish dancer should wear is astounding and eye-filling, and her simple but effective requirements as to setting and lighting turned the Studebaker into whatever she chose to make of it.
Mr. Concaldi sang his ditties with an engaging verve. He has a sunniness about his person and a rhythmic lift to his baritone voice which fitted him well for a part in the afternoon's cheery picture.

Over at Kimball hall, Frances Kacelo was busy with a taxing program. A brief visit there resulted in a favorable impression of the young soprano's voice, for she commands good range without sacrifice of a highly agreeable tone quality. She still suffers, apparently, from difficulties of production which impede occasionally the clarity of her diction and the naturalness of her delivery.

OAK PARK is to have a Shakespeare festival next February, and in connection with this, a student in Oak Park-River Forest High school interviewed Shakespeare.

Reporter—How do you stand on the question of the king's dilemma?
Shakespeare: Those that stand high have many winds to shake them.
R—Don't you think the king is showing courage in his fight for love?
S—He may show what outward courage he will, but I believe as cold a night as 'tis he could wish himself in the Thames up to the neck. [Henry V.]

R—I take it you sympathize with the king.
S—I think the king is but a man as I am; the violet smells as sweet to him as it doth to me. All his senses have but human conditions. His ceremonies laid by he appears but as a man; and though his affections are higher mounted than ours, yet when they stoop, they stop with the like wing. [Henry V.]

R—And Wally offering to disappear from the picture. Don't you think that's noble?
S—The lady doth protest too much, methinks.
R—But suppose he does marry her?
S—Naught's had—all spent where our desire is got without consent. [Macbeth.]

R—What is your own verdict?
S—Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown.
There's a divinity doth hedge a king, rough hew him how we will. [Hamlet.]

If you think the king of England has very little authority since the late king had to abdicate in order to marry the woman he loves, you might be interested in the statement of his powers under the constitutional law of the empire, as quoted at the Council of Foreign Relations Saturday by Norman A. M. MacKenzie, professor of international law at the University of Toronto, and as forthright and clear spoke a Scotsman as you could imagine.

Quoting Diez in Bagehot, he outlined some of the British monarch's prerogatives as follows:
"The king can by law, without consulting parliament, disband the army, dismiss all the officers . . . dismiss all the sailors; sell all our ships of war and naval stores; make a peace by the sacrifice of Cornwall; begin a war for the conquest of Brittany; make every citizen of the United Kingdom a peer; make every parish a university; dismiss most of the civil servants; pardon all offenders. In a word, the king could by prerogative upset all the action of civil government within the government, could disgrace the nation by a bad war or peace and could, by disbanding our forces, sea or land, leave us defenseless."

"And yet," said Mr. MacKenzie, "he had to abdicate to marry a divorced woman."

Which, as he pointed out earlier in his talk, must seem peculiar, to say the least, to the people of certain sections of the British empire, in India, where polygamy is an established practice.

SIGN on counter displaying printed pajamas: "Coronation prints, $1.95, with a line drawn through 'coronation' and 'abdication' substituted."
DECEMBER No-Verse Exception:

Dances to Give Subdeb Crowd a Lively Yule

Plan Junior Assemblies in Chicago and Lake Forest.

BY JUDITH CASS.
YOUTHFUL daughters in Lake Forest and Chicago families need not wait until they are of debutante age to start going to dances, for every winter there are several parties for the subdebate crowd that are patterned after the debutante parties except for earlier hours and stricter chaperonage. The highlight of the subdebate Christmas season is the Junior Assembly held annually on New Year's eve at the Casino. It is the largest of the parties given for the school age boys and girls.

The more youthful crowd is luckier than the slightly older group, for there will be no large party for the debutantes on New Year's eve, and they will have to see the New Year in where best they may. Mrs. James C. Hutchins, Mrs. Robert C. Orr, and Mrs. J. Newton Perry are combining forces to give a dinner-party at the Casino on the night of the Assembly for their daughters, Miss Margaret Hutchins, Miss Nancy Orr, and Miss Sally Perry, all of whom will be belles at debutante balls before long.

Bryan S. Reids to Give Dinner for Daughter.

The three hostesses have invited about 150 of the older group, mostly those who have been attending Assemblies for the last year or two. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid will give a small dinner for their youngest daughter, Joan, whose first Assembly it will be, and some of her young friends, who also will be going to their first "big" party. Miss Reid is a student at Chatham hall. The Reids will entertain at the Casino, too, because it is so simple for the youngsters to stay on there for the dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Peace are others who have planned a dinner for that night. They will entertain 40 at home for their daughter, Miss Sara Peace, before going on to the Casino.

Lake Forest Assembly on Onwentsia Dec. 23.

Many of those who have been invited to the Assembly have been invited also to Lake Forest's Junior Assembly, to be held on Dec. 23 at the Onwentsia. Mrs. Knight C. Cowles, Mrs. Theophilus Swift, Mrs. Laurence B. Robbins, Mrs. Edward D. Shumway, Mrs. Henry Isham, Mrs. Philip F. W. Peck, Mrs. Robert A. Gardner, Mrs. Gilbert E. Porter III, Mrs. Keith Carpenter, Mrs. Albert Blake Dick Jr., Mrs. DeForest Hulburd, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Kent Chandler, and Mrs. R. Douglas Stuart are on the committee for the party. It will be a dinner-dance at the Onwentsia.

On Dec. 22, Mr. and Mrs. Cowles, Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Pattou, and Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt W. Buchanan will give a dinner-dance at the club for their three daughters, Miss Edith Cowles, a student at Chatham hall, and Miss Mardo Pattou and Miss Barbara Buchanan, who go to Dobbs Ferry. The following week, on Dec. 30, Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Peabody will give a dinner-dance, also at the Onwentsia, for their daughter Joan.

Shoreacres Dinner-Dance for Two Girls Dec. 29.

The Shoreacres club will be the setting for a dinner-dance, the junior Edward A. Cudahy and the Edward D. Shumways will give on Dec. 29 for their daughters, Sheila Cudahy and Grace Shumway. Miss Cudahy studies at Foxcroft and Miss Shumway is a student at St. Timothy's. One of the major dances in town will be given Dec. 21 by the Augustus K. Maxwell and the Daniel C. Greens.

Good Morning!

This is the second picture featuring the Dionne quintuplets. I can't honestly say that I thought it as good as the first—that delightful film, "The Country Doctor." Reason—the story's second rate. But—the quintts are there, and as long as they live they'll be interesting. Jean Hersholt is there as the doctor who brought them into the world, and he's invariably excellent. Dorothy Peterson contributes another forthright portrayal as Nurse Kennedy, and the cast as a whole pleases.

So—no reason why you shouldn't derive considerable enjoyment from the movie.

With the birth of Dr. Luke's 3,000th baby, the Moosetown Chamber of Commerce has an idea. Why not stage a big homecoming for all the folks the good doctor has assisted into the world?

Therefore, gather at Moosetown on a sunny summer's day people from many walks of life—beset with varied problems. Problems that inspire Dr. Luke to become a Dr. Fildt. He mends hearts, saves homes, and plays Dan Cupid. When reunion day is over happiness reigns in places where it had seemed disposed forever.

The story is too episodic and, at times, its hokum becomes pretty sticky—but it does make provision for quite an eye-ful of the quintts. Also, of lovely Esther Halston, who is most appealing as an ageing Hollywood actress who encounters both tragedy and peace at the reunion.
Are the quintts cunning? Yes. Though they seemed to me not nearly as bright nor as pretty as in "The Country Doctor." But my, how they're growing!

See you tomorrow.

From a Chicago shop: Print and velveteen ensemble in the new colorings. The short sleeved dress is of green and gray printed silk in small designs. The long sleeved top jacket reaches the knee, has a double inverted back pleat and the long tuxedo collar is faced with the print of the dress. The velveteen jacket is a green-gray tone to harmonize with the print.

Bill Robinson Celebrates 50th Stage Anniversary

New York, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Bill Robinson, ace tap dancer of the stage and screen and Harlem's first citizen, today celebrated the 50th anniversary of his debut in the show business. The day was climaxed by a special performance, attended by a galaxy of amusement world notables, at the Times square night club where the 57 year old Negro hooper's clikety-clicks are currently keeping people jiggling in their seats. The actor made his initial stage appearance a half a century ago in the play "The South Before the War," and has been dancing ever since.

Want Swank? Try Negligees in Silk Jersey

They're Star Attraction of Many Smart Gifts.

BY RHEA SEEGER.
Supergift selections from a swanky women's shop: Typically feminine affairs of lace, sleek satins, soft silks, embroideries. Also the finest of imported gloves, filmy stockings and some of the best finds in gadgets and costume jewelry in the town.
The star attractions of the negligee showing are the gorgeous creations of silk jersey copied from an original by Alix. These jerseys are smooth and cleverly draped with all the fullness neatly and flatly arranged down the front of the skirt and in the molded bodice top. They have short-sleeved sleeves. They are without a single bit of trimming, the almost liquid beauty of the clinging silk jersey being sufficient. The colors are practically unlimited, but the dull black is a beauty hard to beat, with jade green and pink running close.

The soft woolen robes are glorified beyond recognition with swanky satin collars, pockets, wide sashes, and the like. The luxurious marabou trimmed confections come in heaven blue and pink. A white affair is outstanding.

There are travel pajamas in white dotted navy silk, brown, duobonnet, and some exquisite soft blues, and tailored pajamas with fine handwork like French nightgowns. There's a giddy pajama outfit with trousers of dotted silk, pin dots of white against scarlet, then a blouse top in reverse, the dots red and the background in white. Little girl looking dotted nightgowns of floral printed ninnos, and a wide array of lace trimmed nightgowns are available.

Colored imported gloves are of soft suede and come in soft, subtle colors. A beautiful green tone is one of the best finds and there are some lovely fawn tones, thick creamy ivory, and long sooty black numbers. These are only a few of the many dress parade gloves to be found.

Cigaret cases, tiny figure pins in carved wood, sports fob watches in vivid colors as well as brown and black, stunning clips in simulated rubies, rhinestones, and emeralds, glass cases and boxes, and fitted cases that are the last word in luxury, are more of the gift ideas in this shop.

The Man on the Blue

By Luke Short

SYNOPSIS

Shamrock Ireland, wanted for shooting a town marshal in self-defense over a card game, reaches Arizona on his blue, and saves the life of Sheriff Lobell, who is about to be shot by a girl, Nancy Hyatt. The Hyatts—Nancy and her brother, Mayo—have lost their ranch, the Double Diamond, to the bank. Mayo has threatened to kill any man who serves him with a subpoena. Because Shamrock believes it was Mayo who betrayed the man who brought him to the state, he accepts the dangerous task of serving the papers. He confronts Mayo at his ranch and learns he has misjudged him. He tries to shoot Lobell to save his brother, paroled on good behavior, from killing him. Shamrock "by accident" and cleverly outwits him, causing Lobell to shoot one of his own men, Maginnis, a stable boy, is wanted, according to Lobell, across the border as a killer. Shamrock senses that Lobell, for some reason of his own, plans to have the lad shot while "attempting to escape" on the trip across the border. He steals the jail keys so that the boy cannot be taken out while he's away at the Hyatt ranch with Lobell. Lobell sends Shamrock in to face Hyatt. Shamrock convinces the Hyatts he is with them, and persuades Mayo to leave the ranch till they can investigate. He tells Lobell that Hyatt has left and the ranch will be given up peacefully as soon as the hands are paid. Shamrock overrules the posse riding out with Maginnis.

INSTALLMENT XXV. INTO MAN'S ESTATE

Shamrock paused, noting without seeing that the other guard, the silent one, had folded onto his saddle horn. Shamrock's bay had gone down now.

The guard on the other side of Maginnis shot again, just after Maginnis horse slammed into him and missed.

Shamrock's second shot was low, blind, and it hit Maginnis' sorrel. The horse screamed, folded down on one knee as Maginnis pitched forward, heaving the upper half of the guard's body clear.

Shamrock opened up, emptying his guns in one shattering blast that was hardly a second long.

Then he rose. The guard tried to say something, scream something as he was slammed out of his saddle. When he hit the ground, Shamrock raced to Maginnis.

The sorrel was on his side, kicking, Maginnis pinned under him, terror in his eyes.

Shamrock loaded his gun, and shot the sorrel, and after a last convulsive kick, the horse settled quietly on its side.

"You hurt kid?"

Maginnis shook his head.

"Without even looking at the two guards, Shamrock drew his knife and cut the hobbles under the horse's belly which freed Maginnis' legs.

"Can you work out?"

Agn Maginnis shook his head.

The sorrel was lying almost in the center of the arroyo, his feet against the curve of the four-inch bank. Shamrock went over to the roan, who had stood utterly still through it all. His rider, the tall guard, had piled onto the ground, face first, and lay there, his hands doubled up under his chest, his Stetson still on.

He looked back, and Maginnis was fighting wildly to pull his leg out.

Shamrock took the rope from the saddle and went over to Maginnis. Then he squatted in front of the sorrel's belly.

"Can you stick it out, kid? It hurts, don't it?"

"It's numb," Maginnis said, and smiled. "It don't hurt a-tall."

"Hold tight a minute."

Shamrock worked out a loop in the rope, then raised the sorrel's head and slipped the loop over it. He worked the loop back until it was against the shoulders, then he built it bigger and slipped it under the sorrel's front legs and pulled it as tight as he could.

Then he led the roan over close, dangled the rope on the horn, and started the roan. It tightened the loop just behind the sorrel's shoulder.

"I'm goin' to pull, kid. I won't skid him off you, but I'll pull slow. He's got his feet against the bank and he ought to raise a little before he skids. When he does, you kite out. Can you do it?"

"Sure," Maginnis said.

Shamrock eased the roan into the lead. The sorrel wasn't big, but the roan's footing was uphill and it was work. Shamrock talked to him, urged him, rumbled him mildly, and the roan put his weight into it. Shamrock felt the rope tighten, go taut, then he felt the roan making progress by inches. He looked back, and Maginnis was fighting wildly to pull his leg out. The roan moved ahead six inches and Maginnis broke free, just as the roan was pulled back.

Shamrock dismounted and walked over to the kid. He was standing now, testing his leg gingerly.

"It ain't broke," he said, grinning up into Shamrock's face. Shamrock smiled back, his face thawing into a real grin of pleasure. "You ain't as salty as you was in jail," he said. "Not by half."

"I thought you was one of 'em," Maginnis replied sturdily. "You—ain't—are you?"

"No," Shamrock said simply. "Do you believe that?"

Maginnis nodded.

"Let's look at that leg."

Examination revealed only a raw, livid bruise on Maginnis' thigh and calf, where the horse had fallen on him. The soft sand had saved him from a broken leg.

The youngster gulped. "Them devils!" he said passionately, seriously. "I reckon you saved my life."

"Huh-uh. You saved your own—and mine—by pullin' your horse into that other jasper's."

The kid was about to protest when Shamrock silenced him. "You go gather in that pint"—he pointed to the smaller guard's horse which had been stamped by the fight and was now standing a dozen yards off, reins trailing—"and throw my hulla on that roan."

It was useless to try and hide the bodies of the two guards, but Shamrock didn't want the buzzards to pick them. It was quick work to haul them clear of the arroyo, and pile rocks on them where Lobell could see it. Not that he would have any doubts what Harmer got to him with his story. He hurried through the business, hating it on account of Maginnis. Fifteen years old was a little too young to see things like this.

Finished, he walked back to Maginnis, who was standing grim-faced by the paint.

"Let's get off the trail," Shamrock suggested. "And while we're at it, we might try to cover up our tracks."

He mounted and picked his way carefully, sticking to the rock and larger gravel that would make tracking difficult. He headed for the mesa, and traveled its level length until they reached the end of it. From here, they could see the hills that hid the town and the road leading from it. Shamrock dismounted and lay down in the shade of a cedar. Maginnis, limping a little, did likewise.

Shamrock rolled a cigarette and lit it, not speaking for a while. Maginnis' face was working strangely. There were tears in his eyes, Shamrock saw, the natural reaction of his escape from death. But there was something more, for Shamrock guessed on this day Maginnis had said goodbye to his boyhood and had come into man's estate. Maginnis wiped his eyes with his sleeve, but Shamrock kept utterly still.

"I reckon I'm just a—"

"Forget it," Shamrock said gently. "If it's been ballin' up inside you, why not?"

Maginnis grinned shyly. "Got the makins'," he asked gruffly.

Shamrock handed him his tobacco sack and did not laugh at the rat inch of cigarette Maginnis built, nor at the cough it brought. Slowly, in that wordless communion, Maginnis' face lost its tautness.

"I wisht I had guns," he said suddenly.

"I thought you would. That's why I took a pair off of those jaspers. They're in that slicker on the roan's saddle."

"Thanks," Maginnis said huskily.

BY MARY MEADE

A little peach in the orchard grew,
A little peach of emerald hue.
But that little peach, the one which caused "trouble the doctor couldn't subdue," wasn't at all the kind of peach which is plucked from the tree to be dried for our fruit compotes, peach pies and other desserts.

The little peach must be allowed time to grow fat and rosy ripe before it is ready for drying in the sun. The same is true of the apricot.

These two fruits when dried contain all the minerals of the fresh fruit in concentrated form, and are excellent sources of vitamins A and C. They are important in the prevention and cure of nutritional anemia because of the high iron and copper content which makes them good blood builders.

The old method of soaking dried fruit overnight is as outmoded as the old theory of searing meat at a high temperature. The new and better method of dried fruit cookery consists of these three steps:

1. Wash the fruit well.
2. Cover with water and boil 40 minutes, counting the time from the moment the fruit begins to boil. Remove skins of peaches after boiling for 5 minutes, cover with fresh water and cook remaining time.
3. Add sugar (1/4 cup for each cup of fruit) last 5 minutes of cooking.

These rules apply to dried apples and pears as well as peaches and apricots. Prunes will require a little longer, figs and raisins less time. Dried fruit has a firmer texture, more character and more flavor when cooked by this short method.

Cooked dried apricots and peaches may be served as breakfast fruit, as an accompaniment for meat dishes, a topping for upside down cakes, in muffins, fruit cakes, jams, pies and refrigerator desserts. Here are several choice recipes:

Peach Pie Cake.
2 cups cooked, unsweetened dried peaches
1 1/2 cups granulated sugar
2/3 cup shortening
3 beaten eggs
2 1/2 cups all purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons ginger
1 teaspoon cloves
Mash the drained peaches to a pulp. They should measure 1 1/2 cups of pulp. Cream the sugar and shortening, add the beaten eggs and peaches and mix well. Add sifted dry ingredients and mix thoroughly. Bake at 375 degrees in three layer pans, for about 25 minutes. Put layers together with mocha or boiled frosting. There's no milk or water in the recipe.

Apricot Whipped Cream Pie.
2 cups cooked dried apricots
5 cups water
1/4 cup quick-cooking tapioca
1 1/2 cups granulated sugar
3/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Dances to Give Subdeb Crowd a Lively Yule

for their sons, Augustus Maxwell Jr. and John Sexton Green, who are seniors at the Boys' Latin school. The Greens and the Maxwells will entertain in the Electric club, high over Wacker drive, and if conversation seems a bit slow at first to some of the 150 guests, many of whom are going to a supper-dance for the first time, there will always be the superb west view for a topic.

Mrs. T. Phillip Starck will give a dance in her spacious Wellington avenue home Dec. 23 for her younger children, Miss Margaret, a student at the Bennett school, and Brent Starck, who attends the Boys' Latin school. Mrs. Starck has invited about 85 young people. After Christmas she and Miss Mildred Starck and Philip A. Starck and his bride of a few months, as well as the younger members of the family, will entertain over week-ends in their Lake Geneva home.

C. Durand Allen to Give Dance for Children.

Winnetka's young people are not to be without their Christmas parties. Mr. and Mrs. C. Durand Allen are giving a dance at the Winnetka Woman's club Dec. 23 for their daughters, Miss Jane and Miss Susanna, who are at St. Catherine's school in Richmond, Va., and their son, Durand Jr., who goes to the Hill school.

On the afternoon of the 23d six debutantes in the sophomore class at the North Shore Country Day school will entertain the three upper classes of the school at a tea-dance at the Indian Hill club. The youthful hostesses include Miss Evelyn Gardner, daughter of the Henry A. Gardner; Miss Peggy Body, Miss Mary Kay Howard, Miss Lucy Harvey, Miss Gertrude Scribner, and Miss Jane Hardy.

On Jan. 2, at the Indian Hill club a group of 20 girls, members of the senior class at the Country Day school, will give a dance. They include Miss Virginia Ballard, daughter of the Roger K. Ballards, Miss Priscilla Hannaford, daughter of the Foster Hannafords; Miss Edith Farwell, daughter of the Albert Day Farwells; Miss Mary Phyllis Barber, Miss Jane Bulger, Miss Jane Cheney, daughter of the F. Gordon Cheney; Miss Nancy Dammann, Miss Natalie de Clerque, Miss Alice Graft, Miss Windy Dole, Miss George Hill, Miss Rae Johns, Miss Martha Lamb, Miss Priscilla Payne, Miss Sarah Mosser, Miss Marie Louise Richards, Miss Louise Shore, Miss Martha Jane Towle, and Miss Helen and Miss Nan Wieboldt.

The youngsters who play in the playground at Lake Shore drive and Walton street have been invited to meet Santa Claus in the afternoon of Dec. 24 in the Drake hotel, which will have its annual Christmas party that day for children of the neighborhood.

A part of the Christmas party in Barrington will be furnished by Selton F. White and his daughter, Miss Blanche White. They will be at home Sunday afternoon at an eggnog party.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank to Go West in January.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank will be traveling west in January, for she is going to San Francisco to see her son, Benjamin, who is working on the west coast.

A former San Franciscan who will be coming back to her former home, Chicago, in February is Mrs. Cabor Brown, who will visit her sisters, Mrs. Graham Aldis in Chicago and Mrs. Luther Hammond in Lake Forest.

Several interesting speakers will be heard today. At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the home of Mrs. William D. McKenzie, 1185 Laurel avenue, Hubbard Woods, Frank P. Breckinridge will speak on "Investing and Inflation" in the second of a series of two lectures sponsored by the Winnetka Woman's club.

The Lake Shore League of Women Voters will meet and hear Mrs. George Gellhorn of St. Louis, former vice president of the National League of Women Voters, at 8 o'clock this afternoon at the new Arts club. Bokke Carter will be the lecturer at Thorne hall tonight in the Northwestern university series of lectures. At 8:15 o'clock he will discuss "Broadcasting the News." The next lecture in this series will be given Jan. 14.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence entertained guests over the weekend, Gen. and Mrs. L. G. Gigniliet. Gen. Gigniliet is the superintendent of Culver Military academy.

Palm Beach's One Bathing Suit Rule Is for Men Only
Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 13.—(P)—The rules on bathing suit modesty in this society resort have shrunk with the suits. Police Chief Joseph Borman announced regulations for the winter season today gave only one rule—men must wear shirts on the streets under penalty of $2.50 fine for first offenders and $5 after that. On the sands they may wear only trunks. The women, apparently, will be free from legal limitations.

Rudolf Serkin, Pianist, to Give Concert Tonight
The Chicago section of the National Council of Jewish Women will sponsor a concert by Rudolf Serkin, pianist, this evening in Orchestra hall. This is the first full length program to be given by the artist in Chicago, and is the annual benefit of the council for its many charities.

HAROLD TEEN—POPEM PETE IS A MIGHTY MITE

History Takes First Rank in Movie Plans

BY GEORGE SHAFER.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 13.—[Special.]—A score of pictures with historical or semi-historical backgrounds will be made early in the coming year, indicating that the 1937 trend in films will follow closely upon the recorded or expected successes of "Lloyd's of London," "The Light Brigade," "The Plainsman," "The Road to Glory," "White Angel" (story of Florence Nightingale), "Last of the Mohicans," and "Mary of Scotland."

Those on which actual shooting already is considerably advanced include "Farnell" and "Michael Strogoff."

Some have been completed, waiting for release, as Paramount's "Maid of Salem," and R. K. O.-Radio's drama of the Irish Easter rebellion, "The Plough and the Stars."

On others research has been advanced to the point where shooting will start soon. These include Warner's "Danton" with Max Reinhardt as producer; R. K. O.-Radio's "Escadron" (Lafayette Flying Squadron); Warner's "Prince and the Pauper" (the studio preparations prompted the announcement: We challenge anybody to disprove authenticity of our 16th century English details); Selznick's "Gone with the Wind" with an accumulation of civil war incidents; R. K. O.'s "Gunga Din," Metro's adaptation of E. M. Remarque's "Three Comrades"; Douglas Fairbanks' "Marco Polo" and Paramount's "Souls at Sea."

It is interesting to note the success of Warner Studio's tabloid shorts on American history which already have introduced Patrick Henry in "Man of the People," and the M-G-M series beginning with "The Sign of the Cross" which dramatizes the writing and signing of the American constitution. "The Monroe Doctrine" is next in the M-G-M series.

A sight no visitor ever gets used to, is the visit of the milkman to the movie set. The electricians, 50 feet in the air on the upper runways of such a large set as "Maytime," for instance, lower ropes to pull bottles of milk up to the ceiling.

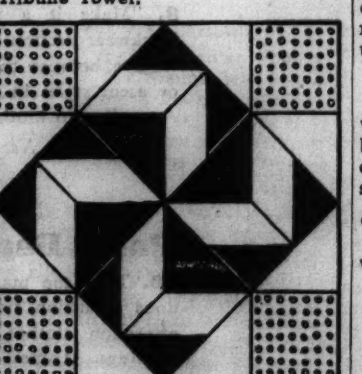

Billie Burke has been taking music lessons to sing in "Farnell." Lenore Bushman, one of Francis X.'s daughters, is making a movie comeback after four years, but will take a new name. Her sister, Virginia Bushman, retired as an actress when she became the wife of Jack Conway, director. Ralph Bushman, brother of the sisters, is playing minor featured parts in movies also. He is in short reeliners at M-G-M.

Clark Gable asserted on the set of "Farnell" that the reason he goes duck shooting and horseback riding so often, is because he learns lines better, and holds his mental composure better, when he can declaim his dialog loudly to the open air with no one around to say, "That guy's nuts."

Gable said, "At first I nearly frightened my horse to death. He would jump every time I began one of my orations. But now he pays no more attention to me."

Firewheel.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Firewheel" was a pioneer woman's interpretation of a symbol prominent in some beadwork given her by an Indian woman in Oklahoma. The quilt pattern was first pieced in red, white, and red and white printed materials. The entire coverlet was composed of pieced blocks surrounded by a three inch border of red printed material, and finished with a half inch turley red binding. Present day quilt makers are afforded a much wider choice of color combinations which are in keeping with their room decorations.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

OPTIONAL MINIMUM BIDS.

For the same reason that a hand such as ♠ A K 6 5 ♥ 7 6 4 ♠ A 5 3 ♣ 9 4 2 may be passed by first or second hand because there is no suitable rebid to most responses that partner may make, a hand containing six small cards in a minor suit and two and one-half bare honor tricks also may be passed:

♠ 5 ♥ K 7 ♣ 9 8 5 4 2 ♠ A K 3

If an opening bid of one diamond is made and partner responds with one spade or one heart, a rebid of two diamonds would mislead him as to the strength of the suit. A rebid of one no trump would not correctly portray the distribution of the hand. If partner replied with one no trump the opener could not safely pass, there being no assurance that his diamond suit would be of value at no trump; yet a bid of two diamonds might not be safe. Here again the player has the option of passing.

Most careless hands containing a bare two and one-half honor tricks should be passed first or second hand, even though they include a rebidable suit and therefore the technical requirements for an opening bid: ♠ 7 4 ♥ K J 10 8 3 ♣ K J ♠ 8 4 2—pass.

TODAY'S HAND.

Wallace R. Chandler Jr. of West Orange, N. J., sends me an interesting example of a grand coup.

Both sides vulnerable.

♥ A K 3

♦ K Q 6

♣ 10 5

♣ A 9 7 3

The bidding:

North East South West

1 spade Pass 2 clubs Pass

3 no trump Pass 5 clubs Pass

6 clubs Pass Pass

In reaching their questionable slam contract North and South did well to avoid the fairly persuasive heart suit, selecting clubs as the trump instead.

It will be noted that the diamond ace was a certain trick against either contract. With hearts as trumps, a 2-2 break of the heart suit, or a lucky guess against certain 3-1 trump divisions would have been necessary in addition to the club finesse which could not have been avoided at either declaration. At clubs, however, since the North hand offered discarding opportunities on four tricks—three in spades and one in diamonds—the heart situation was not so sure an item.

West opened the jack of diamonds, and East's ace took dummy's queen. On the nine of diamonds return South discarded a heart and won in dummy with the king. Then the ten of clubs was led for the finesse. When it held, the eight followed, South untrumping with the seven, and the king of clubs was led for the finesse. This then developed that East originally had held the king guarded three times.

Obviously there was only one way for the king to be picked up and that was by means of a grand coup, or trump reducing play. Dummy's low diamond was ruffed, and the king of spades was led and overtaken in dummy. On the queen and jack of spades South discarded hearts, the fourth spade was ruffed with the jack of clubs, the ace and king of hearts then were cashed, and the contract now was "wrapped up." Declarer had left only the ace and queen of clubs and, with the play in dummy, he was certain of making them by overruffing whichever trump East had to use on the twelfth trick.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: I opened the bidding with one club opponents did not bid. Partner responded with two clubs. Should I have shown the heart suit now? My hand was:

♠ J 5 ♥ A 9 4 ♦ 7 5 ♣ K 10 9

Answer: Yes. Your correct rebid was two hearts.

Chinline Often Key to Beauty of Silhouette

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

As you have been hearing lately, attention is being focused upon the feminine head as never before. If that coiffure isn't neat, smart, and up to date you're dropped out of the winning team.

Today let's talk about another part of the head. The chinline is what we have in mind. After all, it proffers a lady not very much if she spends time and money and taste on a grand coiffure yet lets the chin go slipping along. "You're so, girl! That chinline and throat more than you suspect, influences the effect of the airdress."

Some women are born with the long slender neck that makes any coiffure appear chic and trim. Some aren't. Some start out in deb days with a good girlish outline of chin and throat, but by the time their own girls are debs the chin and throat are swallowed up tragically. It's this group we'd urge to think of the lovely hair and headline as just as definitely including the chin and jawline and the throat, too, as it includes the hair itself. In fact, in hairdressing circles, yes, and in millinery, too, you take your hair from what is told from the shoulderline up.

In recent seasons with necklines higher and hair in the back floating around collar lines, among the less favored of us there is a problem of how to beat the cluttered, heavy, thickish neck appearance. As a coiffure aid, lifting those drooping curls in the back would be the best thing to do. This and foregoing the high collar for a line that gives length to the throat in front. One doesn't have to follow styles unless the styles are flattering. No woman looks last yearish who chooses to lift the back hair high and lower the front neckline, if that's her better choice. In fact, she'll look far more chic than by trying to emulate the slender necked younger women.

However, the real trick of conquest is to thin down the chin, jaw and neckline and nothing will do this as well as the good old familiar neck exercise, such as the head sharp-ly to right and left, stretching to look at a star over each respective shoulder. Then dropping head onto the chest, raising it and letting it fall back down shoulder way in back.

The chewing motions, with gum or without, are excellent movements for jaw and chinline. Another lid movement if the back of the neck is fat is to place finger tips on shoulders and twist arms and shoulders in a circular motion. After doing this exercise, be certain to follow up with a massage, molding the neck, working from its base along the muscles up to the chin and outward the full length of the jawline.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

There is a decided trend toward the luxurious and the higher priced in the Christmas offerings of the year—but there are beautiful gifts for small amounts of money, too. Here, for example, are three charming gift choices, costing less than $2:

1. A stunning black and silver beauty box in the form of a book. The lid lifts to reveal special sizes of very fine beauty preparations—cleansing cream, tissue cream, a foundation cream that is one of the most lasting of makeup bases, face powder, and a bottle of retreating skin tonic. This is a charming little box for the business girl.

2. A big box of bath powder in a new fragrance that is like a bouquet of garden flowers. It's dainty and fresh and the scent lasts wonderfully well. The box is orchid in paper that simulates a tufted effect, topped by a fat orchid satin puff of sachet scented like the powder. This puff can be detached from its satin moorings to serve as a scented agent for handkerchiefs or lingerie.

3. A cologne that will appeal to the woman who prefers that her perfumes be fresh and faintly sweet. The scent is unusual; it defies analysis but has a decidedly lemony fragrance. Most women, especially those who dress quietly for daytime and prefer their perfumes to be nonobtrusive, too, would adore it. The bottle is simple but elegant looking and in its trim yellow and gold box makes a smart gift.

[For information about these preparations telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100.]

Blouses of Shirtwaist Type

Winter suits, office ensembles, and cocktail outfits demand a variety of lovely blouses. While the glamorous tunic and peplum varieties have been holding the limelight considerably of late, the soft shirtwaist type of blouse still is dear to the hearts of designers and womanhood alike. The pattern illustrated today is the basis of two delightful versions. One is strictly tailored and is perfect in crepe silk and soft velvet or challis. The other takes on a more feminine air and is grand in metal cloth, crepe satin, and novelty figured fabrics. A trim velvet skirt is ideal with the practical model, and velvet, velveteen, or dull crepe is a perfect foil for the dressier version.

Both designs have sleeves puffed at the shoulders and a bodice gathered softly into a trim yoke. The result is a broad shoulder effect, handsome and flattering to every woman, no matter what her silhouette proportions. The tailored version has a little shirtwaist collar and a patch pocket and is trimmed with neat buttons. The dressier type has a narrow little band collar enhanced with a minute bow. No pocket is provided, unless you really want it, and the buttons may be the glittering rhinestone type or otherwise jeweled.

Style No. 3234 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 2 1/4 yards of 39 inch material for the blouse sketched above. The dressier blouse illustrated below requires 2 1/4 yards of 39 inch material.

Child Can Make Gifts at Home Fashion to Be at Small Cost 'Food Minded'

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON REVANS

Here's a letter full of courage and Christmas cheer.

"My dear Mrs. Evans: I read with much interest your article in the paper on children's gifts. I entirely agree with you, but had to smile when I thought of how few things I was able to instruct my youngsters in making. Then to my joy I saw your offer of a leaflet on this subject."

"I am the mother of one boy, 6; and the 'boarding' mother of four more, two 17; one 15; and one 11. We are in straitened circumstances, as my husband's salary is small. All my boys are destitute children cared for by a welfare agency."

"Do not think Christmas is not a gay time here. It is! We always have a tree, hang up our stockings, and have our grand feast. On the other hand, the gifts are mostly all from the five and ten cent store, or our own cellar workshop. The older boys are clever at wood carving and painting, and last year the little ones made worsted balls, bean bags, book marks, and Christmas blotters. But this year I can't think of anything new."

"I read your column regularly, and often am tempted to write to agree or disagree on points raised. My family, of course, is different from the average in that its members are always changing. Since a year ago last March I have boarded seven different boys of all ages, stages, and personalities. Two of them were subnormal mentally and physically, and two of them were out on parole."

"With the exception of one of those on parole all the boys thrived mentally, morally, and physically while they were with me. They gain on an average of ten to fifteen pounds in the first two months."

"The only reasons I can give for my good results is that I love them, treat each one according to his needs, guide them gently, and keep as up to date as I can on the subject of child psychology."

"Are your children pleading? 'Mother, what shall I make for Aunt Jessie? Mother, tell me something to make for grandma and grandpa. Mother, what do you think I could make that daddy would like?'"

If they haven't made their gifts as yet, and you simply have run out of ideas to give them, you will find tomorrow's article exceptionally helpful.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

That it now has become fashionable to be food minded must give the woman a smile whose vocation of mother and housewife has forced her to food mindedness to these many moons. It's a sweet revenge for the home woman who has had to sit on the side lines listening to others talk shop and more shop, with never a word of encouragement lent her to digress on her particular brand of shop talk, cooking. That is, if she now is given a voice. The trouble with women, career minded or career pursuing, is that when they adopt a new hobby, they're apt to talk and act as if they had just discovered it, and their brief familiarity with the subject appoints them as authorities.

The real authority on foods is the little woman in the home who can plan, buy and serve three meals a day on a limited budget. And believe us, there are countless numbers of these authorities who never think of themselves as such, much less become vocal in their own authoritative right. But the day is at hand when the woman in the home is to get her rightful recognition. As Mrs. Oliver Harriman recently expressed it: "About the only woman who is not dramatized is the one woman who matters most in the eternal scheme of things, namely, the woman in the home!" Mrs. Harriman, incidentally, is one of the leaders in a movement to give the woman in the home the place in the sun to which her calling entitles her. Distinction in cooking last year put a good many of these same home women on the front pages of the country over through the offices of the organization to which Mrs. Harriman is attached. Again in March this same body will see to it that more honors are piled upon the homemakers.

However, this wide interest in foods that fashion decrees at the moment is a movement which deserves all the applause it can get. Far be it from us to minimize its value to women all over. It's one of the most humanizing of interests. As a hobby it is especially recommended to those women whose vocational influences separate them from what might be termed one hundred per cent feminine pursuits.

Christmas Stars for Christmas Belles

Handkerchiefs

1. These will give you just a hint of the dozens of hand-made styles to be found in Carson's hand-made collection. Linen, hand-embroidered, with hand-rolled edges, spoke hemstitching, mosaic type edges or cut hem effect. Each priced at 50c.

Handkerchiefs, First Floor.

Flowers

2. Give her flowers for Christmas—not the kind that will fade in a day or two, but the kind she can keep on wearing. A corsage of French orchids at $1.95, for instance. A wide selection at Carson's artificial flower counter from 50c to $7.95.

Millinery, Fifth Floor.

Perfumes

3. Lanthier's "Tweed"—if she likes English clothes and week-ends in the country. A fresh sweet pea and fern blend. According to size of the bottle, priced at $1.25 to $22.50.

Caron's Bellodgia—subtle but devastatingly sure is this fragrance, that is just right for grand occasions. According to size. $10.75 and $19.25.

Lucien Lelong's Indiscret interprets and anticipates the newer modes. A scent that's subtle, urbane, sophisticated. According to size. $5 to $25.

Rallet—lovely ladies need no pretty speeches about Rallet's flower fragrances. Wherever there are ladies who like exquisite perfumes you'll find these. According to size. $2 to $7.

Perfumes, First Floor.

Gloves

4. They're from Europe, where the making of fine gloves is a tradition. Soft kidskin beautifully cut to fit faultlessly. Decorative styles with stitchings, cut-outs, applique, rolled tops, and embroideries. Black and white. Priced from $3.95 to $5.75.

Gloves, First Floor.

Pearls*

5. Are certain to please her, whether she's the tailored type or frilly and feminine. For pearls, nowadays, belong with every costume. These two and three strand pearl necklaces, with rhinestone clasps, are $2.95. Bracelets to match are $1.95.

*Simulated.

Jewelry, First Floor.

Rhinestones

6. Rhinestones with brilliant emerald, ruby, or sapphire color stones create a stunning bracelet. $10. The brooch divides into two clips. $5.

Square-cut emerald or sapphire color stones set in sterling silver! A bracelet to quicken the pulse of the lucky lady who fastens it on her wrist. $5.

Gleaming rhinestones make this bracelet particularly lovely. And, if you feel benevolent, make the set complete with a pin to match. Each, $3.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO

CONNOLLY MEETS PETERS TONIGHT AT MARIQUO

Texas Youngster Fights
First Windup.

Tonight's Card

Nick Peters vs. Joey Connolly 18, 158.
Tony Ciandola vs. Carl Rosen 16, 148.
Paul Adis vs. Paul Williams 16, heavy.
Jackie Reed vs. Freddy Graham 14, 161.
Babe La Varra vs. Maxie Rubin 14, 126.

Nick Peters, San Antonio, Tex., lightweight, will receive his chance against topnotch competition tonight in an eight round bout against Joey Connolly, champion of Scotland, at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. It will be the former high school athlete's first windup appearance in twelve starts at Marigold. He won all his previous battles, six by knockouts.

Connolly, aggressive, hard punching Scotch-Irish warrior, will be engaging in his third contest in this country, but he still is searching for his first triumph. Al Nettlow and then Jimmy Garrison knocked out the terry little foreigner, but only after the stiffest kind of opposition. Joey is still smarting from these embarrassments and will try to get a measure of revenge by knocking out the young upstart from Texas.

Tony Ciandola, Milwaukee welterweight, who knocked out Johnny Terry a week ago, is paired with Carl Rosen of West side, in the semi-final set for five rounds. Paul Adis, Minneapolis, Minn., heavyweight, who made an auspicious Chicago debut by scoring a knockout over Verne Galbreath last week, meets Paul Williams, south side, in a four round, four rounds. Jackie Reed, Lansing, Ill., middleweight, will make his professional debut in a four round bout against Freddy Graham, newcomer from San Francisco, Cal. Babe La Varra, South Side Jack O'Keefe's hard hitting featherweight, will be opposed by Maxie Rubin for four seconds. A wrestling bout also is carded.

Okie Shikina, Japanese newweight wrestler, will meet Jack Conley, Boston, Mass., in a 60 minute bout at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, tonight. Matches at 30 minutes involve Tony Falletti and Bill Brooks, Jack (Bad Boy) Brown and Roland Meeker, Pete Bartu and Charley Peterson, and Bull Curry and Lefty Pacer.

Dan Winters, journeyman heavyweight wrestler, tackles Jack Gaeck in the headliner at Rainbow Fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue, tonight. They are booked to struggle for one fall with a 60 minute time limit. Supporting matches at 30 minutes bring together Mario Espinoza and Herb Schwarz, George Kondellis and Dick Stahl, and Lawrence and Al Brown. In the opening match, slated for 20 minutes, Billy Goetz meets Johnny Foreman.

Johnny Coulton, former bantamweight titleholder, has canceled the amateur boxing show, scheduled at his gymnasium, 1125 East 83d street, tonight. His next card will be offered Jan. 4. . . Sammy Kohn and Jack Curtis have been matched to meet in the semi-windup to the mat headliner concerning Ivan Rasputin and Nango Singh at Arcadia Gardens Wednesday. . . The fifth annual amateur boxing tournament, sponsored by the Illinois Athletic club will be held at the club gymnasium, 112 South Michigan avenue, Jan. 12, 13 and 20. . . The Inland Steel Athletic association will present its third annual boxing and wrestling meet at Washington High school gymnasium, East Chicago, Jan. 11 and 12. . . Max Marne, north side heavyweight, who has been suffering from a bad cold since Friday, will resume drills today at C. Y. O. center in preparation for a state City Friday. In case he is unable to shake off the cold, Max will ask that the match be postponed. F. M.

SOUTH'S COACHES PLEAD FOR BIGGER ATHLETIC FUNDS

Attack Conference Stand on Subsidization.

Richmond, Va., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Smoke lifting from the Southern conference scene today revealed that despite the compromise substitute for the Graham plan, the subsidization issue of the fifteen member athletic group were far from settled.

Dr. Bennette E. Gear, president of Furman university, expressed the attitude of those opposed to "cluttering up the rule book" when he said delegates would return to their campuses "knowing they have adopted rules that they can't live under. We have been passing legislation that is going to force hundreds to tell a lie."

He referred particularly to the section of the new code providing that eligibility committees must decide whether a student has received financial assistance primarily because of athletic ability.

Graham Issues Warning.
Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, and sponsor of the plan for curbing subsidization which the conference replaced by a modified code, warned the conference members, however, that the failure to "provide a barrier against athletes receiving aid from alumni and outside groups will ruin us."

He contended that the cause of amateurism in college athletics could best be served by "uniform restrictions against evils we know exist."

Indications that a new deal may be sought by coaches came with charges that college presidents were unfair towards their athletic departments made by R. A. Smith, Washington and Lee athletic director, and Coach Branch Bocock, William and Mary.

Attacks Financial Setup.
Smith proposed that colleges provide appropriations sufficient to cover the expenses of the athletic departments and coaches be given faculty tenure.

In discussing his point that colleges forced athletic departments to raise a large share of their budget expenses through gate receipts, Smith said:

"Do you think Carl Voyles and Hunk Anderson would be back tracking each other in the mountains of West Virginia looking for football players if there were no gate receipts?"

Bocock came to Smith's support with the suggestion that jobs of chemistry and physics professors be dependent upon the success of their students "they would all be back tracking each other in West Virginia just like the coaches."

HANDICAPS FOR INDOORS POLO TOURNEY FIXED

The rules of play to govern the Metropolitan Indoor Polo league championship tournament, starting Jan. 2 at the 124th Field Artillery armory, were announced yesterday by Herbert J. Lorber, representing the Indoor Polo Association of America in charge of western handicapping.

Competition is to be in the senior and junior divisions. Senior teams will carry total ratings of seven goals or more, while those in the junior bracket will have a rating of six goals or less. By agreement of captains and players, five points will be the maximum handicap awarded any team.

Newcomers not already listed will carry their outdoor ratings and in all cases the ratings assigned players will not be subject to change during the tournament.

Each team, declared Lorber, must file its roster of players, including the three regulars and one alternate, all of whom are eligible for competition in any game.

M'GOWAN, MACK ADDED TO CAST FOR ICE CARNIVAL

Everett McGowan and his skating partner, Ruth Mack, will be members of the supporting cast of the Chicago Stadium ice carnival which opens on Christmas night. McGowan and Mack are in Chicago rehearsing a new act which they will present at the Stadium as members of the cast of stars who will support Idi Papez and Karl Zwack, the Viennese couple.

McGowan and Mack also developed a new routine for their long Texas Centennial engagement recently completed. The act has been even more commented upon than their Apache dance on ice, which was one of the feature events of last year's Stadium ice carnival. The act will be presented in Chicago for the first time during the ice carnival.

CHATT WINS WET FLY EVENT IN CASTING MEET

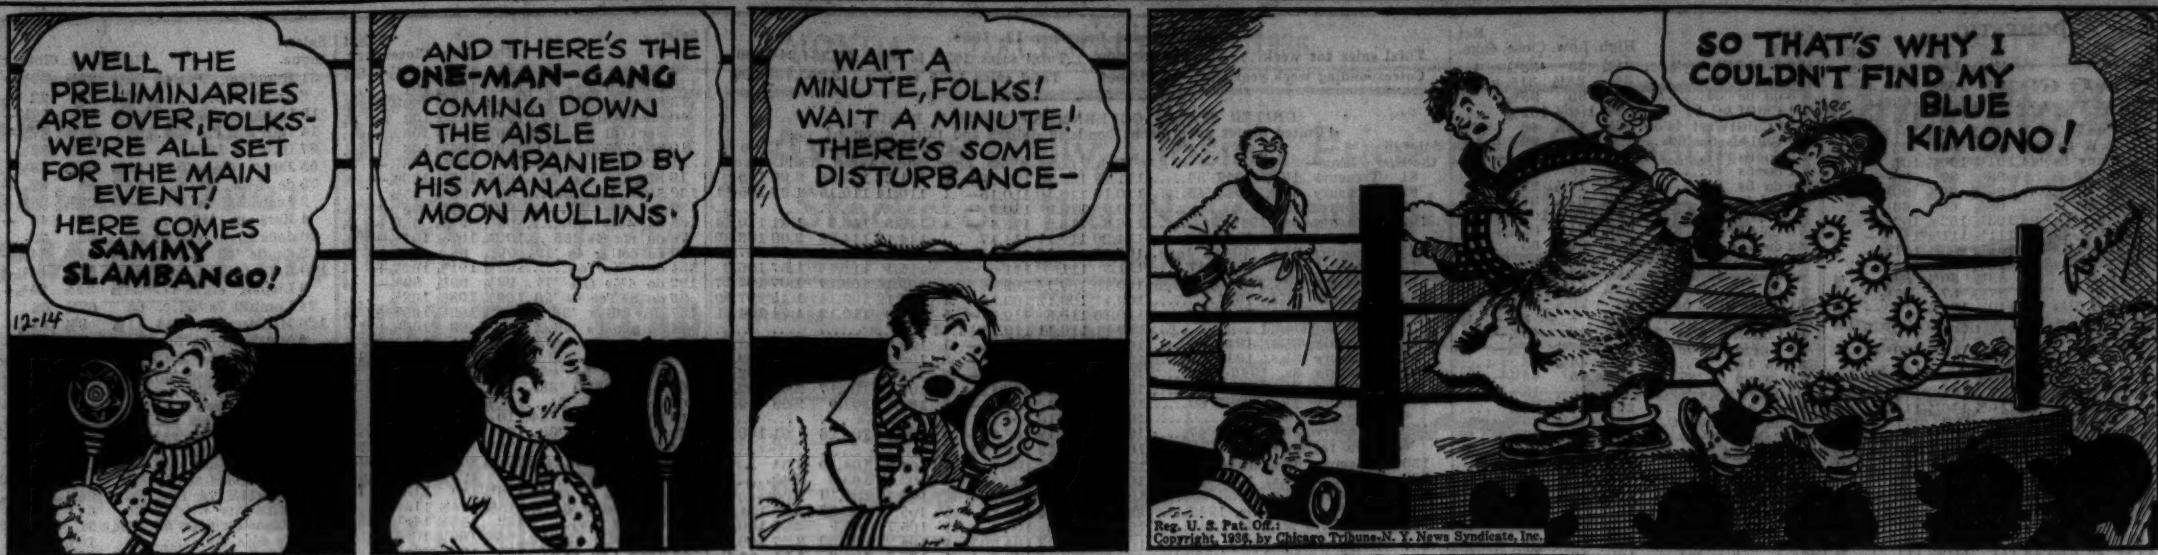

Howard Chatt won the wet fly event and one of the special turkey shoots in the weekly fly casting meet held by the Illinois Casting club in the University of Chicago fieldhouse yesterday. The other turkey shoot was captured by Clare Bryan.

In the wet fly contest Chatt finished with a 97, Eugene Frank was second with 95, and Eddie Davis third with 94. Next Sunday the George Capper trophy will be awarded to the winner of the 5 ounce accuracy ball event.

MOON MULLINS—MAMIE UNCOVERS A MYSTERY

Packers Win Title; Defeat Boston, 21-6

ton backfield to harry the Redskins passers and turn in their runners. The Packers line, except for the minutes of the Boston touchdown drive, formed a wall which held the Boston runners without a first down in the second half and Lon Evans, 220 pound right guard, was the hero of that line who crashed through to block Riley Smith's punt in the fourth period and enable the Packers to get the touchdown which definitely assured them of their title.

Waste One Chance.
A few minutes later, Ernie Smith, giant tackle, whose talented foot accounted for two of the points after touchdowns (Paul Engebretsen scored the other) blocked another kick and the Packers recovered on Boston's 14 yard line. This opportunity was not capitalized, largely perhaps because the Packers had no further necessity for scoring.

Boston was beaten. It was not humiliated. But the Redskins lacked balanced strength in the backfield. They lacked adequate reserves for their line and they were without the services of Cliff Battles, their leading ground gainer, after the opening minutes. Battles injured his leg, already badly bruised, and was replaced by Pug Rentner.

The Packers scored the second time they had possession of the ball. That initial touchdown was scored in the same manner in which the Packers opened their fight against Detroit two weeks ago in which they won the leadership of the west. It was the same scoring play the Packers have made famous this season, a pass play all opponents know, but which none can stop. It is infallible because it is performed by masters at the business of throwing and catching a football.

According to Schedule.
Lou Gordon, Packers tackle, had recovered Riley's fumble on Boston's 47 yard line. George Sauer and Hinkle, in two cracks at the line had gained three yards. Third down and seven yards. The situation called for a forward pass. Boston expected a pass and the Packers expected a pass.

Herbert took the ball and faded back to his left. Hutson, from his position at right end, sprinted down field and cut across toward the side line. Herbert threw and the ball came down its descending arc to Hutson's arms on Boston's 37 yard line. Hutson never checked his speed, which had carried him away from the defending back, Ed Justice, and ran unopposed down the side line to the goal. Ernie Smith's placement gave the Packers a 7 to 0 lead.

Second Charge Falls.
This last pass put the ball on Green Bay's 25 yard line. Here Boston demonstrated its power through the line. Irwin hit for seven yards and followed immediately with another drive for six. Rentner then went inside left tackle to the Packers' 5 yard line and Irwin added four more yards at left guard. The teams changed goals to start the second quarter and Rentner scored from the 1 yard line.

Riley Smith's placement for the point, with Rentner holding, shot to the right of the post. It was his first failure in fifteen attempts. The Packers led, 7 to 6.

Boston immediately returned to the attack, starting from its own 45 yard line after receiving Hinkle's kick, but this march bogged on the Packers' 23 yard line after nine plays. Riley Smith's attempted place-kick on a fourth down from the Packers' 30 yard line was blocked. He recovered the ball, but was downed on Green Bay's 42 yard line and the Packers took the ball on downs.

Arnie Alms Another.
Green Bay opened the second half with another rush, receiving the kickoff and never relinquishing the ball until it had scored.

Hinkle ran Riley Smith's kickoff back 21 yards to the Packers' 26 yard line. On the second drive Herbert passed to Gantenbein for a first down on the Packers' 40 yard line. On the next drive Herbert fired another pass. This one far down field where Johnny Blood, racing across, grabbed the ball just before he stepped out of bounds on Boston's 9 yard line. The pass gained 51 yards, but Herbert threw at least 60 yards or more.

When the Packers were held to only one yard in three plays, it seemed that Boston might stave off the assault. They failed to consider Herbert or Gantenbein, who on a delayed rush shot into the end zone un-

SILVER FOOTBALL.
FIRST ballot received from a member of the board of award for the Big Ten player of greatest will be awarded THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's thirteenth annual Silver Football, named Vernon Huffman of Indiana as first choice and John Drake of Purdue as second choice.

Not enough votes have been received yet to determine the trend, but The Wake feels those interested might like to hear the reasoning of this judge, an experienced observer of conference affairs. Here is his comment accompanying the ballot: "I cast my first vote for THE TRIBUNE Silver Football for Huffman of Indiana, and my second vote for Drake of Purdue. If I understand it, the award is to be made on the player's value to his team. In other words, could the team get along without this or that man?"

"Reid of Northwestern was a grand lineman, and, of course, had been incapacitated the line would not have functioned quite as well as it did. However, Northwestern had so many fine linemen that I think guarded and took a pass for the touchdown. Engebretsen's place kick made the count Green Bay, 14; Boston, 6.

Centers Exchange Punches.
Boston received the kickoff and after Irwin had been brought to earth on his 27 yard line, time was called while the officials separated Frank Butler of the Packers and Frank Bausch of Boston, opposing centers, who were exchanging punches. The boys were banished from the game.

The game dragged along, with Hinkle keeping Boston on its heels with his kicking until the first minute of the final quarter. An intricate double lateral pass had cost Boston 15 yards because Gantenbein refused to be fooled and pulled Rentner down on Boston's 20 yard line. Here, on fourth down, Riley Smith went back to kick, but Evans broke through and blocked the attempt. The ball bounded backward and hit low on the goal post, then arched to the Boston 2 yard line where Hutson made a dive to gain possession.

Hinkle smashed at center for a yard, and on the next play, with Boston drawn in close, Monnett went wide around the Redskins' left end for a touchdown. Ernie Smith kicked the final point of the game.

Boston made eight first downs to seven for Green Bay, but failed to accomplish required distance after the first half. Each team made three first downs by passing.

Winners Share $250 Apiece.
Green Bay tried 23 passes, completed eight for 147 yards. Two were intercepted. Boston passed 25 times and completed seven for 94 yards. One pass was intercepted. The Packers led in total yardage, 214 yards to 147.

Green Bay was penalized 15 yards while Boston was assessed 25 yards. Boston fumbled five times to three misplays for the Packers. The Packers recovered three of Boston's fumbles and one of their own. Three Boston kicks, one an attempted place kick, were blocked.

Today's victory was worth approximately $250 to each Packer, it was unofficially announced. Each member of the losing team will receive approximately $180.

plays had advanced the Chicago team from its own 12 yard line, where Nichelini intercepted an attempted forward pass. Nichelini ran the ball along the west sideline to his own 34 yard line. On the next play Grosvenor passed to Bill Smith near the west sideline. Smith then ran it diagonally across to the opposite sideline until bumped outside on Los Angeles' 35 yard line. Cuppottelli sneaked around Los Angeles' left end for several yards. Grosvenor placed it on the 16 yard line, but Nichelini lost a yard on the next try and Grosvenor's pass to Wilson was knocked down before Smith tried his successful place kick.

The fifth flurry between Nichelini and Stark was the third of the game. Bobby Wilson, Chicago end, who played with bandages of cotton around his ears, was banished from the game together with Half Back H. W. Wickersham of Tulsa for a punching match in the fourth quarter. Vaughn of Chicago and Pete Mehringer, former Chicago guard now playing for Los Angeles, were warned by the umpire for another dispute in the second half.

The Cardinals made twelve first downs to nine and gained 296 yards to the winners' 188. Chicago gained 183 from running plays and 113 from passes to the Bulldogs' 137 from scrimmage and 52 from passes. The Cardinals were penalized 59 yards for seven infractions, one of 25 yards for clipping and the one of 15 against Nichelini for unnecessary roughness. The Bulldogs were penalized 30 yards on five penalties, three of which were too many times out and one for slowness in putting the ball in play.

Dear Wake: I fear your judges and many readers using the elimination theory as their premises in picking the Silver Football winner may miss an important feature. Here's my process of reasoning:

What eleven or eleven at the end of the season had accomplished more than expected at the opening of the season? There was only one answer. That was Northwestern. Iowa, Ohio State and Minnesota in turn were advanced favorites over the Wildcats, only to be defeated.

What was Northwestern's strongest point? Unquestionably its defense, for it was not a great scoring eleven. Who was most responsible for that defense? Whether you think it was Vanzo or Fuller or any other lineman than Reid, the boys themselves named Reid as their most valuable, and one must accept their verdict.

Therefore, Steve Reid, most valuable player on the only eleven in the conference that really did better than expected before Dec. 25. The recipient, after mature deliberation and consideration that it was presented on the day of King Edward VIII's abdication, named the playful little rascal Wallis Warfield Simpson Ratcliffe. No divorce is impending.

Thanks for "Drinking Drop."
"Thanks Fans of Princeton for Drinking Drop" informs our newspaper headline.

We hasten to assure readers that President Dodds of Princeton was not felicitating old grads and undergraduates for their conviviality at football games but rather the contrary. In the first place, celebrating Princeton, we are informed, do not measure in drops. Secondly, the word was used in the sense of meaning reduction.

NEW 1937
FORD V-8 TRUCKS
AND COMMERCIAL CARS

For 1937, Ford introduces NEW hauling and delivery ECONOMY... a choice of power to fit your individual needs. There are TWO engine sizes... an improved V-8 for high speeds and heavy-duty service stepped up to 85 horsepower... and an entirely new 60-horsepower V-8 for house-to-house delivery and other light work.

To apply power economically and to meet individual load requirements, optional equipment is available in many combinations... one of which will do your job at lowest cost.

There's a big difference between delivering a load of coal and a pound of coffee. A truck that's powered for one job may be over-powered or under-powered for the other. But with Specialized Transportation, you get top economy for your own individual operation. In addition, you get the most advanced style in truck design... plus many new features that assure greater economy and longer life. And you get forward load distribution, torque-tube drive, quick-action safety brakes and all the other features that have won the enthusiastic approval of Ford owners for years.

Get the facts today! Call your Ford dealer and set a date for an "on-the-job" test under your own operating conditions.

DE PAUL QUINTET,
HAMLINE GLASH
TOMORROW NIGHT

Hamline university, Minnesota conference basketball champion for the past five years, will face De Paul university tomorrow night at the 132d Regiment armory.

With the exception of Gordon Ditz the same team which gave De Paul such a stirring battle last year at the De Paul gym will be back. In Ditz's place Coach Hutton is using Warren Johnson, 6 foot 4 inch sophomore.

Other Hamline Starters.
The other Hamline starters include Vic Olson and Buzz Gray, forwards, and Capt. Bud Kronzer and Harry Falk, guards. Olson was an all-state selection last year.

Coach Jim Kelly hasn't definitely decided on the Demons' starting five but it is likely that Fred Knez and Willie Phillips will be at the forwards, Nick Yost at center, and Bill Wendt and Ed Campion at guards.

Campion is playing better than ever this season. His exceptional ball handling and tricky passing makes him one of the best offensive guards in De Paul history. Last spring in the Olympic final round Campion was voted one of the tournament's outstanding players and was selected as an Olympic alternate.

Saturday night De Paul will battle Purdue at the armory. De Paul hasn't been able to beat its Big Ten rivals in the past two seasons. Last year before 9,000 fans at the Stadium Purdue won in the last few seconds of play.

EXTRA SPECIAL WEEKLY STOCK MARKET

Bankers Study the Huge Torrent of Dollars.

New York, Dec. 12.—(P)—A big year-end outflow of dollars to share holders and workers, slated to reach flood tide this week, is expected in banking circles to accelerate the turnover of money. Extra dividend checks totaling more than $300,000,000 are due to go out within the next few days from twenty leading corporations alone to a great army of stockholders.

Many added millions will be paid in bonuses and wage increases to workers.

How the money system reacts to this Christmas torrent of dollars, driven in part by the federal surtax on undistributed profits, will be watched closely by banking authorities. Many contend it will impart velocity to bank deposits piled up chiefly from heavy federal government "deficit spending" to promote recovery and relieve unemployment.

Dollars Go Round and Round.

The steeply graded profits level, passed in the last session of congress, was supported by some financial chiefs of opinion that it would make the dollars spend, instead of lumping up in corporation surpluses.

Billions of dollars disbursed by the treasury through use of the credit machinery found their way into bank deposits throughout the country.

Failure of business recovery to keep pace with this "inflation" of deposits was ascribed in New Deal financial circles to partly to a lag in money "velocity." In other words, while "deposit money" available for use increased sharply, it did not change hands any faster. The main reason for the lag, some said, was that the bulk of the deposits eventually came to rest in corporation accounts, where they were held for future use of disbursement to stockholders.

Money Pours Out.

Thus the profits tax, aside from its revenue raising aspects, was seen as an effort to close the circle of money flow resulting from government spending.

Instead of turning back increased earnings into reserves, as thrifty habits dictated in other years when business was coming out of depression, hundreds of millions of dollars moved to pay out all or most of 1934 profits before Jan. 1 to obtain credits against the heavy surtax on retained income. As a result hundreds of millions of extra dollars will be sluiced into the spending stream.

Offers to Extend Bonds of Lake Erie-Western Ry.

New York, Dec. 12.—(P)—The Nickel Plate railroad has offered holders of the Lake Erie and Western railroad first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, due Jan. 1, the opportunity to extend the bonds for ten years at the rate of 3 per cent and a sum equal to 1½ per cent of the principal amount of each bond deposited as additional consideration for entering the extension agreement.

SELLING ORDERS WEIGH HEAVILY ON STOCK MART

Shares Continue to Move Lower.

[Chicago Tribune News Service.]
New York, Dec. 13.—The mild attack of "fitters" which speculative Wall street suffered over the British constitutional crisis passed with the lovelorn monarch's abdication and the accession to the throne of his brother, but the stock market continues to adhere to what brokerage house letter writers refer to as its cautious mood. Selling orders predominated in yesterday's trading and that of the day before just as they did in the days when the world was wondering what the king and his empire were going to do about it all.

Commentators are more or less at a loss to account for continued decline, gradual as it is. Most of them seem to think that the list is entitled to a substantial recovery, if for no other reason, from the mere fact that its setback has reached the stage where a readjustment is technically in order from the sheer nature of things.

Averages are Down.

The averages are now a good 7 points below their high of a month ago, although still well above—2 or 3 points—the ret levels they dragged in August and September when election uncertainties were weighing so heavily on trading sentiment. Moreover, the industrial returns are noteworthy enough to act as a spur to buying under normal conditions, although last week's extra and special dividend returns are said just about to have wound up the golden flood which set in immediately following election.

Steel industry operations are at the highest rate in several years, with orders on the books increasing under stimulus of the new advanced price schedules to go into effect next quarter. Railroad traffic also has risen more than seasonally and the fact is well known that holiday retail trade is breaking the record of recent years. The rise in general prices, commodity, factory output, etcetera, continues, although not so sharply as in some previous months. The prophets are agreed that the momentum evidenced was sufficient to keep the wheels turning at least well beyond the turn of the year. Prospects for the final quarter are said, indeed, to be the best in some six years. All of which would seem to warrant the average market follower to wait for a further pull before the long pull as well as for nearby speculative turnover.

It is the traditional custom of the market, however, to trim sail with the approach of the year's end and some observers are of the opinion that the hesitancy of the list just after the instance of adherence to the timeworn rule. The fact that a new congress is near at hand and that nobody knows what it may be called upon to do in the way of legislation inaugurating the fresh four year addition of the New Deal, adds a tinge of additional uncertainty to the picture of former years. After the first of January, however, many brokers are anticipating a rise in stock prices along with the prices on commodities and manufactured products generally.

The new week's program of market influence includes a number of dividends of more or less importance, among them being those of Philip Morris, Pullman, Sears-Roebuck, and Consolidated Oil.

Jewel Tea Company Sales
Show Gain Over Year Ago

The Jewel Tea company yesterday reported sales for the four weeks ended Nov. 28 of $1,685,223, against $1,530,109 for the corresponding weeks last year, an increase of 10.14 per cent. Allied Stores.

Investors Guide: Please send me information on Allied Stores stocks.

Answer: Allied Stores corporation was formed in 1928 as the Department Stores, Inc., to control a nationwide department store system. The present name was adopted in 1935 in connection with a recapitalization plan which wiped out preferred dividend arrears and reduced sinking fund requirements and future dividend requirements.

The company operates thirty-four department stores in fifteen states from Texas to Massachusetts through Seattle. One of the stores is in Jordan Marsh company in Boston. Each store operates separately and under its established name, but all are served under centralized buying and merchandising methods.

Earnings have improved sharply during the last two years. Net income was $1,331,000, or 60 cents per common share, in the quarter ended Oct. 31, 1936, compared with $758,000, or 28 cents a share, in the corresponding months ended Oct. 31, 1935. For the twelve months ended Oct. 31, net income was $3,575,000, or $1.42 a share, compared with $2,700,000, or $1.08 a share, for the corresponding months ended Jan. 31, per share figures being based on present capitalization:

1935	1936	Net Income	Inc. per Share
$2,700,000	$3,575,000	$1,875,000	$0.70
$2,700,000	$3,575,000	$2,700,000	$1.08
$2,700,000	$3,575,000	$2,700,000	$1.08
$2,700,000	$3,575,000	$2,700,000	$1.08

Current assets were $29,136,000 and current liabilities were $5,694,000 on Jan. 31, 1936.

Since sale of $4,500,000 of 4 1/2 per cent debentures of 1931, August, 1936, funded debt amounts to $7,481,790. There are $1,342,000 of preferred stock and $10,707,000 of mortgages of subsidiaries outstanding in the hands of the public.

Purchase of the Day Brothers store in Syracuse was announced in September, 1936, and negotiations are reported under way for a Cleveland property.

Outstanding capitalization now consists of 209,332 shares of 5 per cent $100 par preferred and 1,778,153 shares of no par common stock.

Dividends are being paid regularly on the new preferred stock. Nothing has been paid on the common stock.

The debentures are considered a business man's investment. The common is speculative.
